DIDN'T CURTSEY

Swedish Woman MP Boomed

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—A Swedish woman cabinet minister today bowed, not curtseyed, to visiting Queen Juliana of The Netherlands and was boomed by spectators.

All of the ministers' wives and other women presented to Juliana curtseyed when presented.

Mrs. Lindstrom was criticized by some Swedish newspapers last year when she refused to curtsey to Queen Elizabeth.

Juliana and Prince Bernhard drove with King Gustaf Adolf and Queen Louise in open carriages through the crowd-lined streets of Stockholm to the royal palace.

VANCOUVER—Funeral services will be held here Wednesday for Mrs. Caroline Maude McGillivray, 72, one of the first white women born in the Cariboo district. She died Sunday in hospital here.

John Diefenbaker, who opened a five-day campaign for the Progressive Conservatives in B.C. over the holiday weekend, called Monday for speedy action on the Columbia River hydro development.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who speaks in Victoria tonight at Memorial Arena, began his tour with a Victoria Day swing through the Okanagan Valley.

"The Columbia power project must have priority in this country," he told an outdoor audience of 325 at Vernon.

"Let us take this out of political partisanship and act," the Progressive Conservative leader said.

Mr. Diefenbaker left Penticton by train early today and was scheduled to fly from Abbotsford to Victoria this afternoon, arriving at Pat Bay at 3 p.m.

A visit to Veterans' Hospital was scheduled at 3:45 p.m.

At a meeting in Penticton Monday night attended by 1,000 persons, Mr. Diefenbaker turned again to Columbia River hydro and also called for a firm line by the federal government in regard to import of U.S. farm products.

The U.S. should pay for down-stream benefits on the Columbia in flood control and irrigation, with the money applied against the cost of the Mica Creek dam, he said. Payment for down-stream power benefits should be in the form of power returned to Canada, not cash.

On agriculture, Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has shown no interest in the B.C. fruit and vegetable growers. It had done nothing about U.S. produce "dumped" into Canada at the end of the U.S. growing season just as the Canadian crop was coming onto the market.

More than $100,000,000 worth of U.S. farm produce had come into Canada last year—"one of the most wide open markets in the world." The U.S. market was closed to Canadian farmers whenever U.S. farmers were being harmed.

"It's about time that a Canadian government started looking after Canadians," he said at Kelowna.

At Vernon he dealt with agriculture and with the government's tight-money policy.

He said External Affairs Minister Pearson, in a recent speech had promised the government would be something for agriculture through the election.

COINCIDENCE

"What have they been doing for the last four years? It just seems sheer coincidence that after four years of inaction, in an election year action is taken."

A Conservative government would ensure farmers a fair share of the national income through price supports which would provide prices that bore a fair relationship to farmers' costs.

"That is being done in every country of the world that has any regard for agriculture."

He said the Liberal government's tight-money policy has not stopped inflation. Prices had risen. High interest rates had "struck a body blow" to small businesses while leaving big business unaffected.

"The first way to meet inflation is for a government to be its own physician and reduce unnecessary expenditures."

He said the federal government overtaxed Canadians by $500,000,000 last year. A reduction in unnecessary taxes would stimulate production and help combat inflation.

Anti-Unionism Probe Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Textile Workers Union asked the Senate rackets investigating committee Monday to look into what it called "corrupt" anti-union connivings by employers, police and local politicians, particularly in the southern United States.

Chairman John McClellan (Dem., Ark.) said he had not yet seen the complaint, which the union made public. He said he would reserve comment until after he has had a chance to study it.

Beck Bounced From AFL-CIO

Removal 'Seals Doom' in Teamsters Says High-Ranking Union Official

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Tribune quotes a high-ranking teamsters' union official as saying that Monday's action of the AFL-CIO executive council in removing Dave Beck as an AFL-CIO officer also "seals his doom as president of the teamsters union."

"As far as I am concerned, Dave Beck is through with the teamsters," The Tribune quotes William A. Lee, an International Teamsters' vice-president and member of the union's executive council.

"I expect our council to meet shortly to deal with the Beck situation."

The paper says Lee has left for a meeting in Washington, where "I believe that Beck will submit his resignation."

Lee, 61-year-old president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, is quoted by The Tribune as saying he believes the council can remove Beck from office if he fails to quit.

"Beck has interpreted the International's constitution to mean that he cannot be removed, but we shall see about that."

Guilty of Gross Misuse of Funds

At Washington on Monday CIO chiefs found Beck guilty of "gross misuses of union funds entrusted to his care" and virtually read him out of the labor movement.

The AFL-CIO executive council—organized labor's highest tribunal in the United States—removed Beck permanently as an AFL-CIO vice-president and council member on charges levelled by a Senate rackets investigating committee.

For the pudgy, 62-year-old Beck the unanimous action was a heavy blow.

Chairman John McClellan (Dem., Ark.) of the Senate rackets investigating committee applauded Beck's ouster as "more than justified" and said "all good union people and good citizens everywhere will heartily approve."

The AFL-CIO council acted on Senate committee charges that Beck had used more than $320,000 in union funds to advance his personal fortunes and then refused to tell about it when questioned by Senate investigators.

Beck, claiming the AFL-CIO proceedings against him were illegal, also refused Monday to answer queries on the Senate charges put by his fellow AFL-CIO union chieftains.

The council acted swiftly and unanimously against Beck after he fled to the basement of AFL-CIO headquarters and sped away in an automobile to avoid facing reporters and photographers.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, who had taken a stern stand against Beck from the outset of the Senate committee disclosures, met with reporters shortly thereafter. He said: "The executive council finds that vice-president Beck has been guilty of gross misuse of union funds entrusted to his care."

"Whether he has violated any laws, state or federal, dealing with theft, misappropriation or embezzlement, is not for us to consider or determine."

"There is not the faintest question in our minds, however, that he is completely guilty of violating the basic trade union law that union funds are a sacred trust, belonging to the members and to be protected and safeguarded for the interests of the members."

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The army took over control of Haiti today "to save the nation from anarchy."

CANADA-U.S. TALKING RIVER HYDRO

Mutual Benefits Under Joint Study

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and United States officials worked today on plans for a study of the best way to utilize, for mutual benefit, water power on rivers which flow across the border.

The two-day conference, which opened Monday, was expected today to include a discussion of the problems to be taken up in a detailed study, which likely will require several months.

The first meeting on the subject was held two months ago in Ottawa.

Monday's discussions were described as "amiable and useful" by a spokesman for Canada's 10-member delegation headed by Resources Minister Jean Lesage. No further details were given.

74 Violent Deaths in Canada Over Holiday; Traffic Toll High

By The Canadian Press

The traffic death toll during the three-day Victoria Day weekend far exceeded the 27 predicted by the Canadian Highway Safety Conference, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

Forty-six persons died in traffic accidents in the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday as Canadians took to the roads despite poor weather throughout most of the country.

The toll surpassed last year's 33 fatalities in auto accidents. The over-all death toll from Quebec had the heaviest death toll with 25, a little more than highway accidents, drownings and other causes stood at 74 compared with 71 in 1956 and 74 the previous year.

one-third of the national total. The province had 19 traffic deaths, two drownings and four deaths attributed to other causes.

SIX DIE IN CRASH

Ontario was next with 23 deaths. Fifteen persons died in auto accidents including six in a three-car collision near Sudbury. Four were drowned and three died from other causes.

Accidents attributed to firecrackers were reported but there were no deaths.

Nova Scotia's total of 10 deaths included two in traffic, five drowned, two in fires and one from other causes.

Saskatchewan reported five traffic deaths including three killed in one accident and one drowning.

Socreds Can Cut Income Tax 50% Says Eric Martin

VERNON, Ont. (CP)—Health Minister Eric Martin of British Columbia says income taxes can be reduced by 50 per cent and only the Social Credit party, if elected, can do it.

Speaking in support of Eric Falis, the Social Credit candidate in Carleton constituency, Mr. Martin said Sunday night the things which Social Credit already has done and which it proposes to do are things which the old parties cannot conceive of doing.

Referring to B.C. finances, Mr. Martin said the provincial debt has been reduced from $191,000,000 in 1952 to $114,000,000 and will be further reduced by August of this year by $50,000,000.

The interest payments thus saved would be spent on welfare and other grants to reduce taxation. The provincial government was receiving considerable revenues from leases of mineral deposits to private enterprise which had discovered them at no cost to the government.

Such revenues could be used to raise the $20-a-month provincial contribution to the Social Credit party's election promise of $100-a-month old age pension.

CAUSE INJURY

Americans say such a diversion would cause "very serious injury" to downstream interests in the U.S. The problem was referred to diplomatic negotiation when the international joint commission, which normally has jurisdiction over boundary waters, failed to reach agreement on the use of the Columbia after 12 years of study and negotiations.

Three British Columbia officials came to Washington for the meeting, though not as members of the official Canadian delegation. They were Hon. Ray Williston, minister of lands and forests; and A. F. Paget and G. Kidd of the B.C. department of lands.

The 13-man U.S. delegation was headed by John W. Jones, deputy assistant secretary for European affairs.

Exploiting the Pensioner

IN AN UNCONSCIOUS FLASH OF candor, Mr. Bennett has disclosed the political use he hopes to make of Old Age Pensioners.

That is the revelation of his Nanaimo speech in which he wooed them with the promise of help he could have given months ago and withheld.

Mr. Bennett says, in effect, give Social Credit the balance of power (so a minority can dominate the majority in Parliament) and Social Credit will raise pensions.

He hedges his position with another promise. If Social Credit does not gain the federal balance of power, the premier says he will take another look at the bonus given by the British Columbia Government to pensioners.

Mr. Bennett's stand is obvious. He is not, in this instance, showing humanitarian concern for the pensioners. He is looking at them through the shrewdly calculating eyes of a politician out to buy votes and support with a promise to pay if the votes are delivered.

His ruse is shabby and transparent. It is aimed solely at the conversion of innocent and needy pensioners into an unwitting background pressure group against the Federal Government.

During the last session of the provincial legislature he had ample opportunity—and was frequently asked—to increase British Columbia's bonus to the elderly needy. Mr. Bennett said British Columbia was doing enough.

Just what is British Columbia doing for Old Age Pensioners?

Mr. George Gregory, Liberal M.L.A. for Victoria, has taken time to analyze the payments made by the provincial Social Credit administration. He is "proud to say that our bonus is as generous as any and more generous than most. But it is not $20 as Social Credit supporters would like you to believe."

British Columbia, says Mr. Gregory,

"pays up to $20 a month to pensioners who qualify on a means test basis; but not all qualify and not all of those who qualify receive as much as $20."

"Of the 99,300 British Columbians receiving the Federal pension, 72,819 receive no bonus at all. Of those who do meet the provincial requirements, some receive less than $2.50; 874 receive $10 a month or less, while 21,933 receive amounts ranging from $17.50 to $20."

"The average British Columbian in receipt of $40 a month from the Federal Government, receives $3.83 provincial bonus."

"Putting it another way, the federal payment to British Columbia pensioners is not merely twice the provincial, as the $40 and $20 figures suggest, but nearly 11 times as great."

"These are facts of arithmetic. They pierce the sunset mists of Mr. Bennett's present concern for the pensioners."

The premier says that the $6-a-month increase passed for pensioners by Ottawa and effective July 1 is not enough. He says that if his party gains the balance of Federal power it will raise the sum. If the party does not gain the balance he will look again at the British Columbia contribution.

If he is sincere in his concern for the needy aged, why does he delay? Why did he decline further help last spring?

The record of the last session puts the Nanaimo promise in proper perspective—exposes the gesture for what it is, a political feint.

Will the pensioners and their supporters allow themselves to be used as Mr. Bennett hopes to use them for election purposes? Why should they?

If the premier is as deeply disturbed by their plight as he currently implies, why didn't he help them months ago? Why doesn't he help them now?

Where Honor Is Due

THE THOUSANDS WHO turned out for the planned holiday events gave adequate reply to those who have wondered if our annual celebration has lost public favor. The pageants, the parade, the Indian Festival at Maple Bank Park, the speedboat and motorcycle demonstrations, the military displays, the horsemanship and other attractions were well staged and well attended.

In the general pleasure of the events it is only fitting to remember that for each success, many background hours of work by persons and organizations were necessary. To those who made the holiday observance so pleasant for the public, a special vote of thanks is due. These are community-minded citizens who put their beliefs into practice. Let us not forget them in our satisfaction over a fine celebration.

A Delicate Responsibility

THE TROUBLE WHICH AMERICA's travelling "Eisenhower Doctrine" ambassador ran into in regard to Jordan may have obscured much of the concrete successes he achieved.

The President's special envoy, Mr. James P. Richards, a former member of the U.S. House of Representatives, was charged with the task of travelling through the Middle East and discussing Eisenhower Doctrine aid with as many countries as possible. It will be remembered that as part of a U.S. program to improve conditions in the Middle East, President Eisenhower proposed financial aid to the extent of $200 millions to be used in that area. Mr. Richards was sent out to "sell" the program and ascertain what amounts would be needed and for what projects.

Unfortunately his visit came at a time when King Hussein of Jordan was waging a desperate struggle against communist elements in his country. The Eisenhower Doctrine—offering aid to fight communist aggression—was one of the chief targets of their anger. To have invited Mr. Richards to Jordan in the midst of this upheaval might well have precipitated riots and demonstrations that would have toppled the throne. Rather than being invited, the President's ambassador was urged to stay away at all costs.

This development, along with direct rebuffs from Egypt and Syria, brought the Middle Eastern tour to a seemingly unsuccessful end. But there were other factors to counteract it.

Twelve capitals in the area welcomed Mr. Richards, discussed American aid and offered programs for a large number of capital works. Included were plans for surveys, highways and communications projects amounting to more than $12 millions.

The communists' chief line of attack against U.S. foreign aid has been that it is merely a device whereby the United States hopes to gain imperialistic control of the smaller states. The charge is demonstrably false, of course, but it has repercussions in the troubled area of the Middle East, where existing neutral or anti-communist regimes are frequently under heavy attack from domestic communist elements.

How assistance under the Eisenhower Doctrine is administered, therefore, will be as important in some respects as the assistance itself. The communist world will be watching for opportunities to charge "imperialism," and it will be necessary for the United States, and the agents it sends out, to lean over backwards in order to avoid cause for even the most exaggerated claims. The responsibility of world leadership is as great a burden as the expense.

Name Your Poison

THE OPPONENTS OF FLUORIDATION of community water supplies will have received a rude shock with the disclosure last week by Dr. W. W. McLuhan, chairman of the B.C. Dental Association fluoridation committee, that tea, seafoods and celery are rich in this valuable mineral.

In fact, as Dr. McLuhan pointed out, a person who drank 20 cups of tea in a day would receive more fluoride in that time than in 10 ordinary years use of fluoridated water. But children don't drink large quantities of tea.

Many anti-fluoridationists oppose this proven method of preventing tooth decay by asserting that it is merely a plan of "big interests" who wish to sell their excess supplies of poisonous fluoride compounds to a gullible public. Will such opponents now turn their guns on the tea producers and see in this heretofore harmless beverage a dire plot to poison the innocent members of sewing and family circles?

We wager that old ladies, with a lifetime of health behind them, will continue to "name their poison" each afternoon, with reckless disregard of the terrible risk they are running.

The Non-Partisan Partisans

IN one of the mainland papers I see that some local candidate is attacked for making a "partisan" election speech. This, I take it, is part of the general campaign to make the word "partisan" disreputable along with so many good old English words. You can make any word disreputable nowadays if you use it often enough, with the proper kind of leer. In the present election campaign, for example, certain partisans (calling themselves anything but that, of course) have smeared the words "tight money" when money is by no means tight, but very loose, and when it would not be money at all, in the sense of having any value, if these people were able to control it.

But if this sort of thing is understandable and expected in an election campaign, I cannot understand why the word "partisan" should have been selected for special denigration.

THE fact is that everyone has to be a partisan. If he is a member or supporter of no party, if he loathes politics and will have nothing to do with them, he is still a partisan. He is a partisan of political neutrality or abstention. He is probably a partisan of ignorance as well.

Nothing can be more respectable, in a democracy, than a partisan of some political party. For there could be no democracy at all without partisans, no parliamentary system without parties and, without a parliamentary system, no chance for the freedom of the citizen to loathe politics.

IT is highly respectable, for example, to be a partisan of the Liberal or Conservative Parties, which have a chance of governing Canada; highly respectable also to be a partisan of Social Credit, though perhaps not highly practical when Social Credit has no chance of governing Canada and can do no more than disrupt the parliamentary system.

A partisan of this party is a partisan of political chaos but that is certainly his privilege and he should be honored, provided he does not deny his partisanship or his objectives.

The only citizen who deserves no respect is he who denies his partisanship for any party, policy or idea and yet goes about complaining against the Government, the Opposition and the whole system which alone guarantees him the right to disparage his own freedom.

In short, I am prepared to support the unpopular theory that the public is better with a mind than without one.

THE bitterest partisan—that is to say the man who most bitterly denounces partisanship—lacks any understanding of the democratic process, his real protector.

He seems to suppose that the partisans of the Liberal and Conservative Parties are altogether satisfied with them and approve everything they do. It must be an extremely naive or stupid Liberal who approves everything his party has done and can see no flaws in the Government. It must be an inspired, childlike and unworried Conservative indeed who can see no mistakes in his party, and it must be a mathematician of genius who can add up its election promises.

ACTUALLY, there is no perfect government or party, since governments and parties are composed of men and men are extremely fallible creatures. The great Canadian editor, John W. Diefenbaker, once put the problem of democratic politics in a nutshell when he said that there were only two kinds of governments in the world—those that were just barely tolerable and all the others.

The wise citizen—that is to say the intelligent partisan—knows very well that all he can hope to get in the way of government is something a little better than the available alternatives.

Anyway, everyone who can read or think at all, immediately becomes a partisan at election time and then partisanship takes some strange forms.

Today I encountered in a certain constituency a person who said he was non-partisan but intended to vote for a certain candidate because his accent was so obviously cultured and English.

A few minutes later I met another non-partisan voter in the same riding who was determined to vote against this candidate for exactly the same reasons.

BOTH those voters were partisans—partisans of accent. That, I suppose, is better than having no views at all, but perhaps not as intelligent as having a view on the issue of the day.

The politician, however, deserves some sympathy when he spends his time and labor arguing public policy and then finds that voters are judging him by his habit of speech, which he cannot help, or by his face, clothes or posture, his house or automobile or, more likely, his wife.

For all these reasons I announce myself a violent partisan in this election. I am a partisan of partisanship. I am bitterly prejudiced in favor of politics. However absurd it may seem to the cynics, I am hopelessly biased in favor of letting everybody make up his own mind.

In short, I am prepared to support the unpopular theory that the public is better with a mind than without one.

The Case for Foreign Aid

IN arguing the case for the foreign aid appropriation, it will be best to admit at the outset that there can be no such thing as an exact estimate of the amount that is necessary. Thus, between January when he submitted the budget and mid-April, when he wrote his letter to Speaker Rayburn, the President had reduced his own estimate by a half a billion dollars—more than 10 per cent. The reduction is in military aid. Yet apart from the uproar all over the country about the size of the budget, had anything been happening in the outer world during those three months to explain such a big reduction in the military estimates?

Nothing had happened to make it more probable or less probable that either the old estimate or the new estimate is too big or too small.

The old estimate was an educated guess, in the last analysis by the Pentagon, as to how much arms and how much subsidy are needed from us for NATO, for Korea, Formosa and South Vietnam, and for those other allies or clients with whom we have military pacts.

The new and reduced estimate is simply a re-estimated guess as to what our military allies can get along with.

Having admitted the difficulty of making estimates, we must ask ourselves what we are trying to estimate. It is the cost of carrying what are, in fact, two related but essentially distinct policies.

Supporting Alliances

One is the policy of supporting and subsidizing America's huge network of military alliances. At least three-quarters of all the money devoted to foreign aid is earmarked for this purpose. Here there are two kinds of questions which Congress can ask.

First, is it a vital American interest that we should maintain our various military alliances, which extend from NATO in Europe to Korea in Eastern Asia? Could we do without all or even without some of these alliances?

And second, could we maintain them effectively at less cost? If so, on whose judgment as to how to do this should we rely?

On the whole, Congress supports overwhelmingly the alliances, and is not disposed to run the risks of any drastic reduction in military aid. It is the second of the two policies, that of earmarking money for civilian economic development, which needs to be explained and justified.

This policy is addressed not so much to the problem of preventing or winning a war with the Soviet Union but to the epoch-making problem of the new relationship between the industrially developed countries of the West and the underdeveloped countries of Asia and of Africa.

The argument which I find compelling is—reduced to its elements—as follows:

Citizen in the Making

The following is a speech prepared and delivered at Central Junior High School last Friday, Citizenship Day, by Alan Oliphant, 14 years old, of 1421 Richardson Street. At a time when thoughtless juveniles are so prominent in the news, this address sounds an encouraging note.

I have discovered in Socials 10 that there are many references to this subject of "Our Privileges and Responsibilities Within the British Commonwealth." However, for this brief talk, I thought you might be more interested in hearing the views of a recent arrival to Canada from Europe.

He has been in Victoria only seven months and already he is preparing to take out his citizenship papers. He is young, married, and well thought of by his employers.

My first question was: "What was your chief reason for coming to Canada?"

He replied, "I wanted the additional freedom for my wife and myself that Canada offered."

Then I asked him why he came to

There have come into existence since the end of Second World War some 19 new nations in Asia and Africa. They contain about 700,000,000 people, and there is among them a mounting demand that, having won their political independence, they shall proceed rapidly to raise their standard of life.

This cannot be done without the investment of capital in the basic productive capacity of each country—in roads, ports, transportation, machinery and the like. The underdeveloped countries have virtually no capital of their own.

There are two main ways in which capital can be raised in an underdeveloped country. One is by loans on very easy terms from North America and from Western Europe. The other is by forced savings at home, which is the way that the Soviet Union developed its industrial economy.

Private Capital

It is often said that the capital should be provided by private investors. For a number of reasons they are not likely to provide enough capital in the places where it is most needed. Thus American private investment abroad has been averaging about $2,000,000,000 a year during the past two years.

But most of this money has gone to Canada, to Europe and to other "developed" areas. About $400,000,000 has on the average gone to Latin America, Asia, Africa and the Middle East have averaged $200,000,000 a year. But of this the bulk has been invested in the countries of the Middle East where there is oil.

There are a number of reasons why there is a shortage of Western private capital available for investment abroad. One is that the political risks in the underdeveloped countries are so considerable.

Another is that owing to the unprecedented and revolutionary policy of full employment, which now prevails in Western Europe and in North America, there is high demand and great business activity. As a result, there is, on the one hand, a big demand for the investment of capital at home.

Two Ways

Failing adequate private investment in the underdeveloped countries, there are two ways left to them.

One is to copy the Soviet Union, as China is doing, and to raise capital by extracting it forcibly from the people, particularly from the peasants.

The other way is to provide a fund of public money in the Western world from which capital can be borrowed on terms that are politically acceptable, are not too hard economically for countries that are very poor.

Such a fund is needed, and the United States will have to be the main, though by no means the sole, supplier of capital. We cannot in fact stand aside. We cannot refuse to be concerned with the needs of these newly-created nations. We cannot say that we do not care whether or how they meet the demand of their people for relief from their grinding poverty. (Copyright 1957 N.Y. Herald Tribune Inc.)

As Our Readers See It

Scott Answers Silenus

Truth demands that unwitting falsehoods written by Silenus be exposed.

In short, I am not the "formidable Quixote" Silenus brands me. But the most nervous and frightened individual who ever had the temerity to oppose the might, prejudice, and ignorance of any "self-appointed" legal oracle.

This has made me pit my fear against his bravery to conquer the Everests Silenus gives me credit for.

Therefore, for Silenus and his readers, please permit space to quote some Everests conquered and unconquered by Bill Scott's fears.

Chinese pirates once terrified me when they arrived to loot and shoot up a light station. My fear soon invited the brave Russian lightkeeper to shoot me first before he shot up the pirates. His frightened wife snatched the gun out of her brave husband's hand to save me.

Fear then made me invite the pirates to steal only half the kerosene, paint, rope, and so on. And fear also made me beseech their protection. It worked. And somewhere in China a report is in hiding, telling how frightened Bill Scott assisted pirates to loot a light station.

When brave Japanese lorded it over frightened Chinese, an extra brave Jap lawyer with a French woman Vichy collaborator, hauled me before the Japanese Supreme Naval Court.

Fear if I betrayed my country made me refuse to sign certain documents. I was beaten up, and threatened with Shanghai's infamous "Bridgehouse" torture prison. Fear then made me blurt out I was once mad enough to help save several Japanese shipwrecked sailors from having their heads lopped off by frightened Chinese guerrillas.

Top Japanese naval brass doubted my madness. After checking—finding I was that mad—they kicked out of the courtroom the Jap lawyer and woman collaborator.

And now to brave legal Silenus, I offer a fearful Bill Scott invitation.

Will Silenus be brave enough to join Bill Scott's proposed "Protection Society for Juvenile Delinquents Against Some Ignorant and Prejudiced Lawyers?" Silenus could then write something worthwhile in his column besides Bill Scott.

And for the record, Silenus should know Bill Scott conquered Ottawa's liberal Everest last year, but failed dismally to surmount the "conservative Everest" of prejudice and ignorance.

So it is with joyful anticipation Bill Scott watches the present legal conservative struggle to overcome the formidable legal liberal Everest.

Wonder whose side you're on Silenus?

DREAMLESS

The physiologist intensely dislikes the siesta. Sleep taken in the middle of the day, for some reason not fully understood, is very unrefreshing. It seems to be much more satisfactory to have all one's eight hours' sleep at one time.

—Dr. O. G. Edholm.

Hecklers, Unite!

WHAT the present political campaign needs is a refresher course in heckling. Maybe it has been better in some of the small, intimate meetings in neighborhoods, or maybe it will improve as the candidates hit the home stretch, but heckling at the big meetings has been discouraging.

What I have heard to date has all the wit, point and effectiveness of two primary grade kids arguing: "My daddy can lick your daddy."

In this day and age, that isn't good enough. As the inspirational speakers say, never has the challenge been so great.

Stott

Technology has put the panzer divisions behind the platform speaker. He's equipped with amplifiers. When a heckler raises his voice, the technician employed by the candidate can turn on more juice. The sheer volume of sound from the speaker drowns out the remarks of the critic in the audience. The public may not be able to follow what the candidate is saying—he may not be able to follow it himself—but with a little more power through the public address system, it's a cinch the heckler can't be heard at all.

Apart from a couple of Gordons—Gibson and Wismer—there aren't many men in this province with voices big enough to drown out a public address system.

TIME FOR STRATEGY

So the hecklers had better resort to strategy. Tanks can be stopped. The Loyalists in the Spanish civil war developed a technique with bottles of oil and gasoline they called Molotov cocktails. So did some of the freedom fighters in Hungary. It's up to the experts in the back of the hall to figure some counter-measure to the amplifier—not dead, but devastating.

Of course they could call on technology too. Why haven't any hecklers shown up with "walkie-talkies" to put them on more even terms with the man with the mike? Why haven't the electronics people come up with a new transistor model that gives mechanical power to the voice in the back row?

That seems a natural for some enterprising firm. They could make a device and rent it out. You can see the advertising slogan: "Heckling tonight? Try our pocket bullfrog."

Or what's wrong with a little gentle sabotage? Why can't hecklers work in pairs—one to pull the candidate's power switch while the other makes his pitch from the floor?

There is an apparent and unfortunate lack of imagination on the part of hecklers. They're not really putting their hearts or minds into their jobs. They're just letting it all go by default.

But even if they achieved some mechanical methods of making themselves heard, that would not be enough. They're just not working on their heckling.

LONELY HECKLE

"Why did you vote with Russia?" has been about the liveliest heckle at major Liberal meetings here. It has a good round ring, like "Have you stopped beating your wife?" But you can't ride out a whole campaign with one heckle—particularly when a man like Mike Pearson shoots it down in flames.

However you figure it, hecklers ought to get together, hold a refresher course, work out mechanical techniques and get some new lines.

Me, I'm inclined to favor the extraneous heckle. You can do things at a political meeting if you jump up, stagger a bit as if the opposition had prepaid you in the cocktail lounge, and yell "Who killed Cock Robin?" Or you can disconcert almost any candidate by leaping to your feet, pointing your finger at him and shouting "What about Joe Glotz?" He's never heard of Joe Glotz. If you're emphatic enough, you can have him so busy trying to put a body to the name he stands a good chance of forgetting his speech.

But you can't do these things—you can't toss off these bon mots—unless you do your homework. You have to prepare. And you should. You owe it to the public and the campaign. Somebody has to get it off the ground.

Nothing like a good heckler to at least get meetings way up in the air. There's a challenge, there, men. Are you going to run away from it? Or are you going to boob the whole deal by lack of preparation?

When to Go to a Doctor

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

In a recent issue of The American Journal of Medicine, there is an amusing story by Drs. Burwell, Robin, Whaley and Bickelmann about a 263-pound executive who, for years, had had a tendency to drop off to sleep at inopportune times. What finally caused him to go to a hospital for strenuous treatment was the fact that, while playing poker, he fell asleep as he was being dealt three aces and two kings. When he woke and looked at his cards—too late to bid them—he decided that it was high time he went to a doctor.

Dr. Alvarez

Years ago I had a patient something like this one who came to me when he had to quit playing poker. His difficulty was that whenever he got a wonderful hand, he got so excited that his face turned scarlet and everyone at the table knew enough not to bid!

FAMILY RECORD OF ILLNESS

Every so often when I suspect that a patient's epilepsy or mental disturbance is based on an attack of encephalitis or meningitis or brain fever, I am unable to learn if, in childhood, he ever had any serious illness, with severe headache and mental confusion, perhaps following an attack of measles. The patient says he doesn't know, and his mother may say that, with eight children, she cannot remember what each one had.

Similarly, if it looks as if the few convulsions a man had might be hereditary in nature, and I ask him if there was anything like epilepsy in his family, again, he is likely to say "I don't know." As I write this, in comes a fine young man who is planning to marry in the next few months. There has been a case of what looks like epilepsy in the immediate family, and the young couple, both able and highly intelligent college graduates, are wondering if they should have children. These young people know much about what their parents and uncles and aunts were like, but they know almost nothing about their grandparents and their great-uncles and aunts. Without the necessary information, it is hard for a genetic counselor to help them.

Back in 1884, Sir Francis Galton, one of the greatest men England ever produced, published a couple of blank-page books, one called Record of Family Faculties, the other, Life-History Album. He felt so strongly that one of the great things that all intelligent heads of families should do would be to record in such a book all that was known about the illnesses and, particularly, hereditary illnesses, in the family as far back as information was available. Mothers should keep a record of the illnesses sustained by their children, with notes on what the doctor said at the time.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

'Pinching' Sure Cure Against Spittle Bugs

The weekend has featured windy and showery weather, a parade, and spittle bugs, the last named having roused the ire of the local gardening fraternity.

Whether you know them as frog hoppers, cuckoo spit, leaf hoppers, or spittle bugs, the originators of these miniature bubble baths belong to the group of sucking insects called aphids.

Jack

During their bubble-blowing period they are referred to as nymphs, quite ugly and in no way resembling the beautiful girls of mythology.

Until the release of Edwin Way Teale's remarkable photos and observations we were led to believe the froth was formed by wing movement or an egg-beater motion of the tail.

Teale has shown us that five minutes after the nymph starts sucking sap from a plant a clear liquid is secreted composed of sap and waxy body chemicals forming a kind of natural soap. At the same time, air is drawn in between a pair of plates under the abdomen and forced out under pressure to make uniform bubbles from the secretion. Tail movement operates the bellows, and accounts for the egg-beater theory of earlier observers.

The first bubbles are picked up by the rear legs and placed over the insect's head, later ones being distributed over the body, forming a protection from the heat of the sun, birds, other insects, and the gardener with his spray gun.

Eggs are laid during autumn and hatch in May, those of the pine spittle bug on conifers, the lined spittle bug on grasses, the strawberry spittle bug on strawberries, while the blueberry spittle bug favors blueberry and huckleberry.

Rarely do we have a serious infestation, our plants usually outgrowing the distorted appearance now so evident. Ro-teneone dusts and sprays are generally recommended, but the insects must be contacted by the poison, an impossible task while the froth protects them.

Stomach poisons sprayed over the plants are useless because we are dealing with an insect which sucks sap instead of devouring portions of leaves. Washing the froth and nymphs from the plants with a garden hose exposes them to the sun and many will not survive. Pinching between the fingers means positive extermination.

Ease Tourist Curbs to U.S., Canada, U.K. Papers Urge

LONDON (Reuters) — British newspapers are calling on the government to ease dollar restrictions and permit more Britons to visit the United States and Canada.

The Manchester Guardian complains that the doors to Canada and the U.S. "are still locked and guarded against the British tourist by the chancellor of the exchequer."

It would cost only $14,000,000 for the government to give 50,000 Britons the standard £100 travel allowance which now is permitted

British tourists for the European continent, it adds.

The Edinburgh Scotsman, owned by Canadian Roy Thomson, says "it is easier for British holiday-makers to go to Russia than it is for them to go to America."

Fresh and smiling after a full weekend of appearances at holiday festivities, Victoria May Queen Sue Pearson, Princesses Grace Chew and Annlyn Florence waved happily to crowds from a lavish float.

Huge City Parade Blends Dignity, Fun for Everyone

By DINAH KERR

The city was on parade Monday in one of the longest, biggest Victoria Day shows that has ever wound past cheering thousands.

Policemen on a motorcycle escort tapped their feet to the marching music, children shrieked their delight as the clowns pranced by, boys whistled at the majorettes, lovely May Queen Sue Pearson, and the stately-stepping women's contingents of the Armed Services.

The parade also marked one of the most splendid showings of military force ever seen in the city.

But its highlight was not the crack Army, Navy and Air Force units, the colorful bands or the whistle-provoking girls' drill teams.

TINY BALL PLAYERS

That came with a straggling march past of some 520 Little Leaguers, who jogged along hitching up their pants, pounding their gloves, chattering to their friends and waving to parents, who could have burst with pride.

One of the littlest of the Little League baseball players rode on his coach's shoulders.

Victorians who have not met their neighbors two doors down the street talked animatedly to groups beside them as the 1½-hour long parade took its course from Athletic Park to the legislative buildings.

TROOPS CHEERED

They laughed together as Victoria fire trucks moved slowly by and someone shouted "Where's the fire?"

They shared their pride as the Queen's Own Rifles, Canada's senior rifle brigade, marched past in close formation.

tion, preceded by 4th Light Aircraft Battery, RCA, and transport carriers towing ominous-looking anti-aircraft guns.

They cheered their aldermen, their mayor, their reeves and their councillors, including cowboy Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who swept by in a horse-drawn surrey.

BATONS A-TWIRL

They joined in special applause for the parade "tourists"—the top Edmonton RCAF band, New Westminster mayor and May Queen, Firemen's band of Vancouver in regulation jackets and cream trousers, Olympic Twirlers in neon pink, and mayor, queen, and Rainbow Girls of Port Townsend.

One of the loveliest floats bore Victoria's Queen Sue and her princesses Grace Chew and Annlyn Florence in a replica of Beacon Hill Park bridge, complete with "swans."

PNE FLOAT WINS

Four lovely local girls graced a lavish PNE float, with huge sparkling butterfly wings, which

City's Parade Well Filmed By Visiting Photographers

Camera enthusiasts attending the third northwest regional convention of the Photographic Society of America held a dawn shooting session in Beacon Hill Park starting at 7 a.m. Sunday. "The light was excellent and the early birds were very happy with what they got," said James McVie, APSA of Victoria, who organized the convention.

Many of the 500 delegates stayed over for the Victoria Day parade Monday and expensive camera and movie equipment were in evidence all along the route.

Sunday afternoon the photographers flocked out to Butchart's Gardens carrying large quantities of cardboard for use as background for color close-ups of the rich profusion of spring flowers.

LAST CEREMONY BEFORE DEPARTURE

QORs Fire Holiday Feu-de-Joie

By AB KENT
Victorians massed by the thousands around Parliament Square Monday noon to take their last proud look at the Queen's Own performing in ceremonial order.

Firing of a feu-de-joie was done for the third time here by about 280 members of Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada as a Victoria Day commemoration of the birthday of Queen Elizabeth II.

The battalion departs next month for its annual summer camp at Wainwright, Alta., returns briefly to Victoria then leaves for a two-year posting to Germany.

For purpose of the ceremony, performing members of the battalion were formed into two companies each containing about 120 riflemen, NCOs and officers. They marched at their close-order-accelerated pace of more than 140 steps a minute to form up on the Parliament Buildings lawn, each company side by side in two long ranks.

To the rear were Battalion Bugles, 20 men with glistening drums, bugles and glockenspiels and wearing rifle green dress uniforms. Beside them was the band of HMCS Naden, which, interspersed with single rounds with a troop of men and four from the 25-pounders.

Again the men, in their summer walking-out-wear, vivid red shoulder patches of the First Division and green berets, offered their arms in a Royal Salute and climaxed the ceremony with head-gear aloft in three cheers for Her Majesty.

Royal salute was taken by Provincial Administrator Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, in the absence of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross. He was accompanied by the commanding officer, Lt.-Col. R. F. MacKay.

Brief inspection over, the Royal Standard was broken out below the review stand and as RCN band played The Queen, riflemen fired over their heads in staccato series

1,000 Share Arena Floor In Pageant

By DINAH KERR

Some 2,000 Victorians rolled up their shirt-sleeves and relaxed Saturday night as another 1,000 strutted their stuff at a grand pageant in Memorial Arena.

The colorful three-hour show, arranged by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie No. 12, marked anniversaries of two local groups—DeMolay boys in their first public appearance and the crack Victoria Girls Drill Team, now in its 20th year.

Parents, who had spent the day ironing costumes, polishing shoe buckles and assuring their young performers that mommy and daddy would be watching, straightened their shoulders and nudged each other as their kid stole the show.

And their kids did.

KILTS, COSSACKS

But from the six majorettes in the Chinese Girls' Drill Team, who stamped the floor as if they were trying to win an argument, to Florence Clough's little Kerry dancers who joined hands in a breathless prance, they gave it back with the kind of entertainment that professionals could never imitate.

The youngsters performed in kilts, fro-frou ballet costumes, checkered skirts and Cossack dress.

While their parents waited for them to make another appearance, they were entertained by back-bends and somersaults of Victoria's Len Oliver Tumblers, who took their "beat" from Seattle Band No. 1 and shared the audience with a top baton-twirling majorette.

SQUARE DANCE FINALE

They also saw and applauded 50 Adeline Duncan dancers, 38 Blue Bird Majorettes, Wynne Shaw Dancers, Victoria Girls' Pipe Band, Renton Drum and Bugle Band and Drill Team, laies' auxiliary drill team, floor team, display and junior teams with the Seattle band, and Victoria Eagles' Band, ladies' auxiliary and Eglettes.

The mammoth show ended with rousing performances from 150 Vancouver Island Western Square Dancers and the Victoria Motorcycle Club.

Presiding over the festivities were Queen Sue Pearson and her princesses, Annlyn Florence and Grace Chew.

The 135 hydroplane class races saw Canadian record holder Jim Hutchison of Vancouver outpace Brock Robertson's Yehudi (Victoria) for first place.

Victoria Outboard Club provided a display of water skiing under direction of Grant Fenwick. Several types of skis and a "flying saucer" were demonstrated.

Songs, Thrills Please Holiday Crowds Sunday

Thousands of Victorians Sunday moved from event to event throughout the area in a fascinating presentation of everything from Welsh songs to motorcycle gyrations.

At 2 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park close to 1,000 persons witnessed a two-hour show presented by the 30 members of Victoria Motorcycle Club.

One of the most spectacular events was performed by Al Lewis and Steve Collins, who climbed a six-foot ladder placed upright on their machine as it moved in a circle.

Wesley Morhart drew gasps when he crashed through three quarter inches of flaming plank at 50 mph.

Welsh songs were featured twice before capacity crowds at Victoria West United Church, in afternoon and evening. People of Welsh origin were present from Vancouver and Seattle and other points.

Scores of people sat under trees surrounding the Beacon band shell in mid-afternoon to hear a concert presented by musicians of the local union.

In the evening, the famed RCAF band drew 1,200 persons to a concert of classical and popular presentations in the Royal Theatre.

Kidd Takes Title

Downs Proctor In Golf Final

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bob Kidd, former Willingdon Cup player, turned in steady golf on a wet course Monday to defeat Frank Proctor, 7 and 5, in the final of the British Columbia Amateur golf tournament.

Kidd, playing out of Vancouver's Marine Drive Club, grabbed a 1-up lead on the second hole of the 36-hole playoff and worked efficiently the rest of the way to wear down his opponent at the suburban Burquitlam course of the Vancouver Golf Club.

The Pacific Northwest champion was 2 up on Proctor, who also plays at Marine Drive, at the 18-hole mark. He took the second, third and fourth holes of the second 18, went 6 up on the 10th and clinched the victory with a win on the 13th, which he birdied.

It was Proctor, however, who got away the best shot of the day before a gallery of close to 200. On the 15th hole, which he won, Proctor, stroked beautifully out of the rough and sent the ball 180 yards to within six feet of the pin. From there, he one-putted for a birdie 3.

Kidd advanced to the final Sunday by defeating Ron Willey of Vancouver, 3 up. Proctor entered the finals by disposing of Bert Tiechurst, 1 up.

For winning the tournament, Kidd received a gold medal and a sterling silver tray. Proctor won a silver medal and a silver tray as runnerup.

Crepello Favored

LONDON (AP)—Britain's leading bookmakers Monday made Crepello a 13-8 betting favorite for the 1 1/4-mile Epsom Derby June 5, establishing him as one of the shortest-priced entries in the 176-year-old race.

Crepello, owned by Sir Victor Sassoon, was 6-4 at last Friday's betting call-over. The bookies again clipped the colt's odds after Sunday's running of the French 2,000 Guineas at Longchamp.

Tyrene, owned by Frenchman J. Puerari, won the French classic from Franc Luron and the Aga Khan's Prince Taj. Tyrene was fourth in the English 2,000 Guineas, seven lengths behind winner Crepello.

T-Men Win Points But Lose Arnie

Nanaimo Timbermen made a tough deal Saturday night—a star player for two points in the standings.

The Timbermen defeated Vancouver Pilseners, 10-8, to move into first place in the Inter-city Lacrosse League standings, but it cost them the services of veteran Arnie Dugan, who was shelved for at least two weeks with a knee injury.

Both teams played it cautiously in the first quarter which ended with Vancouver leading 4-3. Pilseners were shut out in the middle frames as Nanaimo goalie Alf Shuker made 17 consecutive saves while the Timbermen built up a 7-4 lead.

Derry Davies led the Nanaimo scoring parade with three goals. Thirteen penalties were called including five minutes each for fighting to Dave Patterson and Norman Usselman. Usselman also drew two minutes for the roughing which led up to the fight. Eight of the penalties went to the Pilseners.

Nanaimo now holds a one-game lead over Victoria and Vancouver who share second place. One game behind these are New Westminster-Salmon-Bellies.

The defeat was the first for the Pilseners in four games since former Victorian Dave Urwin took over in goal for them.

Bold Ruler Wins Preakness Classic

BALTIMORE (AP)—They let Bold Ruler run his race Saturday in the 81st Preakness stakes and the Wheat-lay stable colt humbled the Calumet Farm's favored Iron Lige in Maryland's great three-year-old classic.

In as thrilling a race as has ever been witnessed at this old cavalry outpost, Eddie Arcaro, Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and Co. got partly even for the licking Iron Lige handed them two weeks earlier in the Kentucky Derby at Louisville. Not since 1948 and Citation has a Derby winner copped the Preakness.

Vice-president and Mrs. Nixon were among the crowd of 32,856 which jammed Old Hilltop and screamed with excitement as Bold Ruler took the lead going into the backstretch and led the parade home by two big lengths over Willie Hartack and Iron Lige in $113,800 gallop.

In fact, Iron Lige almost didn't save second money of $25,000, as the despised 50 to 1 shot, Inside Tract, closed with a rush and finished third only a neck away from the favored Calumet. It was two and a quarter lengths back to the fourth horse, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Promised Land, in the field of seven three-year-olds.

Inside Tract, a fugitive from the claiming races, had never started in a stakes race before, but he hauled down $15,000.

This was the sixth Preakness victory for Arcaro, the fourth for the 82-year-old Sunny Jim, dean of American trainers, and the first for Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, New York and Palm Beach, Fla., socialite.

B.C. Youth Dies as Span Collapses

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—Edward Orbanski, 19, of near-by Pouce Coupe, was crushed to death Friday when an old bridge collapsed into the Kistkatneau River near Farmington, 18 miles northwest of Dawson Creek.

Police released the youth's name and details of the accident today. They said the youth's parents live in Manitoba.

The victim's uncle, Paul Orbanski, 33, of Pouce Coupe, escaped injury.

Police said the uncle was cutting a steel brace off the bridge while young Orbanski was backing the truck on to the bridge. When the bridge collapsed, the truck flipped backwards and landed upside down in the river after a 20-foot drop. Paul Orbanski jumped clear.

BELLINGHAM FLOAT WRECKED DRIVER UNHURT

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP)—An apparent jinx on this year's Blossom Time festival queen's float brought serious injuries Monday to Phil R. Hillier, 40, festival float chairman.

Hillier's jeep went out of control on a downgrade as he towed the float toward Vancouver, B.C. It rolled over and pinned him underneath. His condition was poor today from compound arm fractures and chest injuries.

Hillier was taking the float to Nanaimo for Monday's Victoria Day celebration there. The appearances of the float and Queen Sally Marr and her court were called off.

Last Thursday it escaped damage when fire destroyed another float stored near it.

60,000 Enjoy Nanaimo's Largest Empire Day Fete

NANAIMO — More than 60,000 persons watched the Empire Day parade here Monday, largest crowd ever to assemble in this "hub city."

"It was the biggest day we've ever had," said Frank Ney, chairman of activities.

Thousands of visitors were on hand from other Vancouver Island points, the B.C. mainland, and from the United States. Well represented was Bellingham, Washington, now considered the "sister" city of Nanaimo on the U.S. side because of reciprocal visits.

More than 10 floats took part in the parade, from Seattle, Renton, Campbell River, Courtenay, Lake Cowichan, Duncan, Ladysmith, Bellingham, and other places. Participating also were the Bellingham High School Band of 130 pieces, and U.S. navy personnel.

The parade took 1½ hours to pass. The jamboree of events during the week-end all were packed. Attractions included a swim race, salmon barbecue, sports, a huge dance, a fishing derby, and other events.

W. Vanaplin, Port Alberni, won the swim race from Newcastle to Protection Island. Ten swimmers competed, and six finished the one-half mile course.

Marathoner Bill Muir presented the prize, a silver cup from the Empire Day committee.

2,000 AT PICNIC
The Newcastle Island picnic, sponsored by the Lions Club, was attended by 2,000 persons.

Winner of the soap-box derby was Harvey Thien, 14, of Nanaimo, who took honors in the senior class, and Jim Stevens, 10, Port Alberni who won in the junior division. D. Gould captured the King Perry and vocalists, the Four Knights, packed the civic arena.

Pretty Carol Ann Armshaw, aged 11, of Cedar, was crowned May Queen Friday.

Events here went off without a hitch despite cloudy skies and some rain.

Grand finale was a dance in the Civic Arena, opened when Mayor Pete Maffeo took the floor with Judy Mills, 17, recently elected Miss Nanaimo of 1957.

Mr. Gould received a rod, reel and lines as first prize.

There were more than 300 entries.

THATCHER, DOUGLAS LASH OUT

Tiny Village Jammed For Historic Debate

MOSSBANK, Sask. (CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas and Ross Thatcher, two modern gladiators of debate, have fought their fiercest battle.

Under the glare of television lamps, the Saskatchewan CCF leader and his former political associate, now turned Liberal, matched their oratorical talents Monday night on the stage of the crowded, festooned community hall in this village 50 miles southwest of Moose Jaw.

Despite a continuous drizzle which curtailed the carnival-like trimmings of the Victoria Day debate, farmers, boosters and mere sightseers plus a full array of press and politicians swelled the village's population from 600 to an estimated two or three thousand.

The official subject of the debate was Saskatchewan's Crown corporations, but spurred on by the cheers of their supporters—Liberals to the right, CCF to the left—the speakers enlarged on the theme. The premier criticized Mr. Thatcher for his defection from the CCF, while the former member for Moose Jaw-Lake Centre made a sweeping condemnation of socialism in Saskatchewan.

CHALLENGED BY PREMIER

The 32-year-old premier threw down the gauntlet last fall when he took exception to a Commons speech by Mr. Thatcher in which Mr. Thatcher termed the provincial Crown corporations a "dismal failure."

Monday night, Mr. Douglas said his opponent made the statement merely to prove his conversion to liberalism and to provide himself with an excuse for "deserting and betraying" the Moose Jaw-Lake Centre constituents. Mr. Thatcher in the June 10 election is contesting Assiniboia riding against former CCF deskmate Hazen Argue.

"We had him yesterday, you have him today, heaven help who has him tomorrow," the premier told the audience.

He said Mr. Thatcher tried to link Communist affiliations to CCF members in the provincial House, telling voters in Assiniboia that he had photostats of RCMP files to prove his assertions. He asked how Mr. Thatcher had come by the files, whether he had the consent of Justice Minister Garson and whether Liberals have access to RCMP files for use in election campaigns.

On the Crown corporations, he said: "They have done more to stimulate economic life of the province and provide service at cost than anything else in the history of Saskatchewan."

DEFENDS DEFECTION
Mr. Thatcher, following the premier's opening speech with a 50-minute address, said: "The Crown corporations have bogged down in morass, bungling and inefficiency. The utility of socialism has been shown in the Crown corporations program at terrible cost to the taxpayers."

Defending his defection from the CCF, he said that in 1944 he had supported the provincial Crown corporations in that they promised to promote industry and provide social welfare benefits through their profits.

"Frankly I admit that no one supported the program more enthusiastically than I, until I learned the true facts," he said.

"The premier has failed to prove the Saskatchewan Crown corporations have achieved their original aim; he cannot refute my basic contention; facts are facts."

The speeches were punctuated by frequent interruptions from the floor.

Starring Jennifer Jones, Robert Stack, Robert Douglas, Marshall Thompson. This story was first serialized in the "Ladies Home Journal" and later became the choice of "The Book of the Month Club." As a movie we can heartily recommend it, portrayed in beautiful color and presented in wide-screen Cinemascope and played by such an outstanding artist as Jennifer Jones. We could easily dedicate this picture to the teaching profession as it portrays the influence of "Miss Dove"—teacher—on a generation of her own townsmen in New England. A heart-warming story which will bring back many nostalgic memories.

Greek Scholar Gilbert Murray Dies in U.K.

OXFORD, Eng. (AP) — Gilbert Murray, 91, one of the world's greatest Greek scholars, died Monday.

Born in Sydney, Australia, Murray rose to world prominence as a translator of the dramas of Euripides, Sophocles and Aristophanes.

He was a voluminous writer on Greek literature, Greek civilization and foreign policy.

After retirement from Oxford, Murray kept up his scholarship and writing. In 1941 King George VI named him to the Order of Merit, one of Britain's highest honors given to no more than 24 living persons.

CRITICIZES VANCOUVER PRESENTATION

Anastasia 'Terribly Slow' London Adjudicator Says

EDMONTON (CP)—Adjudicator Ronald Speaight minced no words Monday night in criticizing the Vancouver Little Theatre Association's first-night Anastasia at the Dominion Drama Festival.

He termed the direction "terribly slow—awfully monotonous." Audibility was poor. It was "difficult to imagine a production more unsatisfactory visually." And through all this, "the capacities of the cast were stretched on the whole further than they could reach."

However, the London author and director did praise "the real festival quality" of performances by two of the women in the Vancouver cast of 13 — Edith Dean in the leading role as Anna Brown, and Roe Brown as the dowager empress of Russia. A third actress, Dolores Robinson, was lauded for her short role as a charwoman.

LEAD "TOO THIN"
None of the eight actors had a look-in in Mr. Speaight's adjudication, except possibly Hans Hartog who as Prince Paul was "quite convincing." Franklin John's characterization of Prince Bounine in the lead was "too thin."

Anastasia, a melodrama by Marcelle Maurette, is based on the rumor that the youngest daughter of Czar Nicholas II escaped into Europe when the rest of the family was murdered by Russian revolutionaries in a Siberian cellar in 1918.

"This is the kind of play that either must be right or it must not be at all," Mr. Speaight said. "It is a play that makes very great demands on a relatively inexperienced cast."

He conceded that all eight groups in the festival have a special problem in that "they find themselves in one of the largest theatres on this continent, producing plays they have performed in much smaller theatres."

Sitting in the sixth row, he found it difficult to hear most of the Vancouver players — Miss Dean included, despite her fine performance.

AUDITORIUM "SUPERB"
The players had the task of projecting themselves into an auditorium that stretches 185 feet from the stage to the rear wall of the second balcony. Officials had predicted earlier that while professional actors would have no trouble making themselves heard in the new $4,500-

000 auditorium, amateur teams might have trouble.

"This is a superb auditorium," Mr. Speaight said. "In all the world I have seen nothing to equal it. But we shall have to wait until the week's end to see how good it is as a theatre."

Earlier indications that others were waiting, too, were not borne out Monday night when 900 box office ticket sales helped fill all but about 700 of the 2,700 seats.

A full house is assured for tonight's Stalag 17 by the Medicine Hat Civic Theatre, although sales for most of the remaining six productions have been going slowly.

SETS PANNED
Mr. Speaight said the direction of Anastasia was "terribly slow" though perhaps intentionally in an attempt to project the play throughout the auditorium. This was coupled with "a very awkward set" and furniture that was "quite hopeless." The furniture was borrowed from Edmonton stores.

BEER A CAR LUBRICANT? TV SAID SO

LONDON (Reuters) — British television officials today investigated the case of the confused commercials, in which weekend viewers were advised to clean their teeth with a sausage.

They were also told to feed their cat champagne. A tooth-paste tube was accompanied by the admonition: "This will make your hair gleam."

When a bottle of beer appeared on TV screens, a man's voice said: "You should lubricate your car with this."

The confusion of sound and picture continued for two minutes and 25 seconds on screens in the Yorkshire area. Later a TV official said: "I suppose a technical fault was inevitable sometime. We have to show 600 advertisements in a weekend."

Bergman, Rossellini Deny Divorce Rumor

BOMBAY (AP)—Film director Roberto Rossellini Monday night branded as "fantastic nonsense" a story that he plans to divorce actress Ingrid Bergman for love of a beautiful Bengali script writer.

His denial was coupled with one by Ingrid. The Swedish screen and stage star said in Paris, "there is no truth at all" in the report that Rossellini was living here with a married Indian woman and planned a divorce. Talking to a reporter, Rossellini raised his hands in despair at the mention of divorce.

FRED BALL BIG WINNER

Mounts Spill At Horse Show

By AB KENT

Fraught with spills and drizzles of rain, Victoria Riding and Hunt Club offered its 27th annual open horse show Monday afternoon before nearly 1,000 spectators. Despite handicaps, riders emerged unhurt although several of their mounts suffered cut legs and hooves in tumbles at the hurdles.

Top money-maker and trophy-taker of the day was expert jumper Fred Ball, who won novice jumping, western pleasure and open jumping events, shared first with C. C. Carpenter in pair jumping, and placed third in middle and heavyweight hunter class.

Mr. Carpenter won the middle and heavyweight event, took second in open jumping and shared top in pairs. Mrs. Carpenter added to family laurels by winning the 15th and final event, hack under 15.2.

SLIPPERY GROUND

The show opened under bright skies, but the second event was only five minutes old when rain began to fall, resulting in nervousness for some of the horses, and making the chipped-wood arena slippery at hurdles and around stakes in western races.

The show, held under rules of Canadian Horse Show Association, was under the patronage of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, who is presently overseas.

Visitors included Mayor and Mrs. Scurrah, Miss Victoria Sue Pearson and Princesses, and New Westminster Mayor 12-year-old Alice Gunderson and her entourage.

OUTSIDE ENTRIES

Out-of-town entries included Vancouver, Duncan and Shawnigan Lake horses and owners among them precocious Roddy Pegg, who shared third in pair jumping with Don Abramson, both of Vancouver. Pegg won the maiden jumping class, leading Victoria girls Francine O'Brien and Eileen Whiting.

Offered for the first time this year were trophies for pair western saddle horses, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hett, and open jumping, by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mathews, both perpetual. Judge was Norman Drysdale.

HOT AT LOW SPEED
City driving at traffic-jam pace demands a plug hot enough to prevent fouling. The new Auto-Lite Resistor Spark Plug with Power Tip is the answer... because the projecting Power Tip gets hot faster, operates hotter to burn away fouling deposits which ruin ordinary spark plugs in city driving.

COLD AT HIGH SPEED
On the open road, higher speeds call for a plug cool enough to prevent pre-ignition. New Auto-Lite Resistor Spark Plug with Power Tip is the answer... because the projecting Power Tip is actually cooled by the richer air-fuel mixture to check dangerous high-speed pre-ignition caused by overheated spark plugs.

MONTE ROBERTS

Names make news, but not necessarily... Peter Evans, manager of the Furness, Withy Ltd., Vancouver office, sends thanks for an item in the Times reporting the U.K. steamship owners will transport the Queen's Totem—and asks, a little wistfully, if we can use our influence with Mungo Martin to include the Furness House Flag somewhere on the pole... sorry, but Mungo tells me the pole will be covered with Indian symbols, each of which means Tsa-Cam-Tse-Tsa, which, roughly translated, comes out "land of the sky blue waters"... and our local Furness man (no puns, please) Cec Ridout has a message for W. A. McAdam at B.C. house... had a visitor here on a combined business and sight-seeing trip from Lunnon... when Cec outlined plans for seeing a bit of Vancouver Island, visitor said he was sorry, he didn't know the place was so big... he'd only allowed three hours for his look-around... next time, he'd set aside a full day!!!

Visitors from their present home in Calgary are the Wally Grieves... plus 18-month-old son... she was the former Kay Knights, a radio writing type... Wally is now in the stationery business but is still far from stationary over a set of drums... he'll sit in with old pal Buddy Glover at the Club Tango Wednesday night for a session of polite (at least at the outset) jazz... Buddy and associates dropped a few bucks on their teen-agers-only dance Saturday afternoon... only 41 youngsters turned up for their very own show... they don't want to be alone?

Up-coming shifts in the navy information office will see the Esquimalt SIO, Bev Gillespie, heading for Ottawa come September... he'll be preceded eastward in June by his assistant, Charlie Taylor... and coming back home after an Ottawa sojourn will be ex-Victoria reporter, now navy PR type Ray Wormald... Gillespie is preparing for transfer by pretending his boat is for sale... which he has been doing for several months but somehow still keeps it for one more weekend of not catching fish...

Bob Wallace was one of the few honest adults watching the Monday parade... HE didn't pretend he only came to please the kids... Beaver Lake level up slightly Sunday as large Lanes Whittaker took his initial swim of the season... Jack Ozaro's little league farm team crashed through for a win Sunday and now Jack is wondering how to keep 'em down on the farm...

As for me, I'm just wondering how to keep 'em...

District Schools Face Record Fall Enrolment

U.S. VISITORS CHARGE STREET BEATING HERE

Two members of a visiting group of Tacoma, Wash., boys claimed Sunday to have been beaten by a pair of black-trousered youths carrying a switch knife and a length of knotted rope.

One attacker was said to have worn a black leather jacket with the word "Saints" written on the back.

Police were told by a man who identified himself as a member of the Tacoma police department and in charge of the party, that the two boys were beaten on Yates Street in front of the Dominion Hotel about 2 p.m.

Apart from the clothing description, the visitors were able to say only that one wore a brown shirt and was tattooed on the forearm.

Greater Victoria schools will bulge with a record enrollment this fall but a program of controlled crowding is expected to avoid use of shift systems.

Early registration indicates new students will create a need for 30 additional classrooms. They won't be ready.

Where 517 youngsters will graduate, about 1,900 are expected to be added to the district student body.

FESTIVAL SPIRIT

Whites 'Shoot' Indians

By PETE LOUDOUN

The click of thousands of camera shutters almost drowned out the tribal drums at Vancouver Island Indian Festival at Maple Bank Park Sunday and Monday.

Victorians and out-of-towners flocked to the fourth annual program of sports, dancing and canoe racing—and almost everyone carried a camera.

The program was interrupted at times as festival president Percy Ross and his committee coaxed the shutterbugs to clear the field.

There was subject matter on every hand, appealing to experts and the beginners alike.

Indians of many coastal groups—Chemainus, Neah Bay (Wash.), Chilliwack, Malahat, Yakima, Brentwood, Saanich, Esquimalt, Maplewood, Duncan, Fort Rupert, Alert Bay and others—kneled first for outdoor high mass in the Indian tongue. Rev. Father J. L. Bradley officiated.

Then field sports took over. There were races for everyone from papoose to old chief.

A popular event, especially for the many who shot color film, was the Indian Queen and Indian Princess contest.

Anna Paul, 21, of Brentwood, was crowned queen by 1956 queen Marie George of Burrard Reserve. Anna, in authentic beaded costume, was chosen from among five contestants including Violet Alphonse, 17, Duncan; Jeanette Olsen, 17, Marietta, Wash.; Gloria Hunt, 13, Alert Bay and Darlene Thomas of Esquimalt.

DANCES POPULAR

Named as Indian princess was Theresa Paul, of Yakima. Also entered in the princess contest were Donna Joe, 9, of Duncan; Frances Hunt, 12, of Fort Rupert, and Cynthia Paul, 9, Yakima.

Tribal dances, some of them performed for the first time publicly in Canada, produced an array of costumes and head dress, masks and painted faces to thrill all those looking for vanishing customs and manners.

For contrast, Chief Dan George and his instrumentalists of Maplewood ventured into swing and rock 'n' roll numbers. Top crowd pleaser was Phil Paul, brother of the Indian queen, who out-pelvised Presley.

"Anything the whiteman can do the Indian can follow," said the announcer. (So to the land of Hiawatha came smog, traffic jams, taxes and freeway.)

Between dances, both spectators and participants supped on clams, crab and barbecued salmon.

Canoe racing was delayed by choppy waves Sunday and the first paddles didn't dip until after 6 p.m. Most of the water racing was carried out Monday.

There were 10 entries in the 11-paddle war canoe races. Most of the crewmen spent hours polishing the bottoms of the fragile vessels, hewed complete from one red cedar in each case.

CHEMAINUS WINS

Canoe "Shadow" from Chemainus Bay took top honors in the finals. "Chinook" from Chilliwack placed second, a Kuper Island team was third and Saanich No. 7 was fourth. Kuper Island won the Klootheumans' race.

Main racing ashore saw prizes going mostly to a runner from Winnipeg, Joseph Johnston who took the 220, the 440 and the mile, all in the space of two hours.

AND HERE'S WHY SHUTTERS CLICKED

Pretty queen of Indian Festival at Maple Bank Park is Anna Paul, 21, Brentwood. She was chosen Sunday from field of five. Last year's queen, Miss Marie George of Burrard Reserve officiated at coronation ceremony. Named as Indian princess was Theresa Paul of Yakima.

Anita Long Makes Chilly Comox Swim

Anita Long, Victoria, long distance swimmer and bookkeeper at Diggon's, on Monday became the first person to complete the three-mile swim from Courtenay to Comox.

She set off at 1:52 p.m. from a point 300 yards upstream from the Courtenay River bridge, and landed at Comox one hour and 48 minutes later.

"She was feeling fine and could have swum on and on," her coach and navigator, Bud Phillips, said today.

The glacier-fed river was a chill 43 degrees, and the harbor, where she had to fight a back eddy, was only 46 degrees. She was sponsored on this swim by her employers here in Victoria.

Her first attempt was in early March, when she had to stop because of extreme cold. She can claim she made the successful swim when she was only 17, since she is celebrating her 18th birthday today.

CLARA HORNE was official sampler for her mom at Vancouver Island Indian Festival barbecue pit. Mrs. Grace Horne held salmon slices before huge wood fire in toaster-like frame. Crowd ate it up.

Funeral Service Held Today For Mrs. A. Matson, Aged 91

Mrs. Ada Teresa Matson, widow of the late J. S. H. Matson, F.R.G.S., for many years publisher of The Daily Colonist, died Saturday at her home at 847 Dunsuir.

She was 91 years of age.

A private funeral service was conducted at Mrs. Matson's residence today by Canon George Biddle, followed by interment at Ross Bay Cemetery.

Mrs. Matson was formerly Ada Teresa Galley. She is survived by one son, T. H. Matson, and one daughter, Mrs. Vivian Matson Couland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. H. Matson were married in Victoria in 1889 soon after Mr. Matson came out here from his home in Toronto.

Visitors Report $100 Stolen Here During Holiday

Apartment and hotel room thieves took more than $100 in cash from two guest rooms at the weekend.

At 1407 Fort, Suite 206 was entered by an unlocked front door and while two women slept, a thief took three purses containing about $100 total, which had been left in the bedroom.

It was estimated the theft occurred after 1 a.m. Saturday. Purses later were found in various parts of the building.

Sunday morning at 5:55 an American seaman, Leon Lobel, USS Coral Sea, Bremerton, Wash., was in his room at Strathcona Hotel when a young man walked in, took his trousers containing a wallet with $80 and personal papers, and walked out.

Culprit was described as blond, curly-haired, in his early 20's, wearing sports coat and gaucho shirt.

Son Pins Father With Family Car

A fractured leg was the most serious injury suffered by a dozen persons hurt in traffic accidents on the holiday and taken to hospital for treatment.

Maj. Sidney Digby, 1151 Clovelly, suffered the leg injury Saturday when the car his 14-year-old son was driving into his garage pinned him to the wall.

Bennett Campaign Set to Reach Prairies in June

Premier Bennett disclosed more of his federal election campaign plans today.

Speaking engagements have been confirmed for him in Saskatoon, Regina and Winnipeg during the first week in June.

Other meetings will probably be arranged, the premier said, but he would not say for sure whether he would continue on to make a second foray into Ontario.

This week Mr. Bennett will attend a concrete pouring ceremony at the Deas Island tunnel in Richmond Wednesday, and addresses a Social Credit rally in the Royal Theatre here Friday night.

Next week he will be campaigning in the Okanagan.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—Will you please tell me when the Conservative party under Sir Richard McBride (and later W. J. Bowser) came into office, and in what year were the Conservatives defeated in the British Columbia elections?—T. H. H.

A—McBride, who introduced party government in B.C., the system before that having been only a question of the "Ins" and the "Outs," became premier June 1, 1903, and held office till Dec. 15, 1915. He was succeeded as premier by Hon. W. J. Bowser K.C. Dec. 15, 1915, who held office till Nov. 23, 1916.

The Liberals having won the 1916 general election, H. C. Brewster became premier Nov. 23, 1916, and held office till March 1, 1918.

Q—What day of the week was Nov. 11, 1918, when fighting in the First World War ended?

A—It was a Monday.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

A Metal or Wooden Trellis To Support Roses and Vines

By PENNY SAVER

The gardening bug hits everyone at this time of year, and Victoria homes, especially attractive with colorful gardens now, are being surrounded with summer flowers. Trellises of wood, ready to be painted, or metal, attractive in its own color or in a matching paint, can be added to your garden and to your houses with very little outlay of cash. Aluminum trellis sprays, perfect for vines or roses, cost $7.95, $9.50 and $11.95. Wooden trellis panels are yours for $2.29. Trellis archways may be bought for $11.98. Included are two wide side pieces and the curved top, ready to be bolted together.

For inside the house or for the patio, you can buy lightweight but sturdy planters resting in three-legged black wrought-iron stands. If you wish, you can paint the half-egg shaped planters to match garden furniture and such, but the tan, grey or pink available is very adaptable and attractive. The stands come in two heights, and the planters and stands are $2.95 and $1.95.

In toy departments in town, I found another golf game to keep children amused inside or outside. These sets include an iron, a putter, an outdoor tee,

Family Camping Trip Nice But No Rest Cure for Mom

A camping trip for the entire family, including small children, is something well worth doing once in a while, but do not delude yourself that it is a rest cure for the woman in the home.

Usually she is responsible for the same duties she has at home all year long, without the conveniences of home. Often she must constantly be alert as to the safety of her small fry to see that they do not tumble over a cliff, drown in nearby water or get lost in the woods, to say nothing of stubbed toes, skinned knees and snake bites.

Just the preparation and "get off" are calculated to give her a nervous fit. Then she must prepare three meals a day with makeshift equipment for cooking and cleaning up, and must usually put up a running fight against insects and sunburn. After a couple of weeks of this, even though she may not say so, getting back home to modern conveniences, a comfortable bed, a fenced in back yard, a baby sitter and routine, will seem like a vacation. May be men allow that the little woman will better appreciate what she has if she is taken periodically on a nice long camping trip.

The camping trip is a family institution and I do not recommend that it be discontinued. I am only suggesting that it be valued for its family relations, for the adventure it brings children, for the outdoor life it provides, for fishing for father, not as a rest for mother.

Zenith offers the World's Finest Quality Hearing Aids—tiny, light, inconspicuous—$65 to $165

If you are hard-of-hearing, you naturally want a hearing aid that is inconspicuous . . . something really new and different.

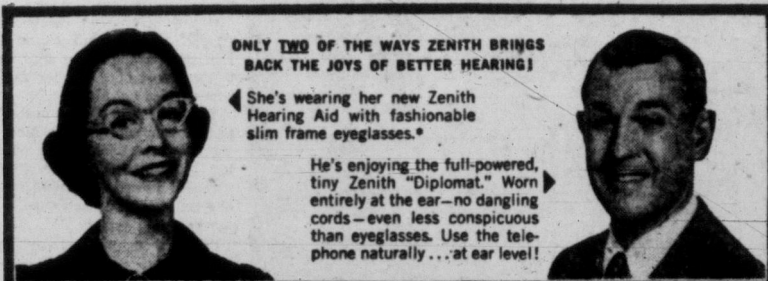

All hearing aid manufacturers and dealers know this. That's why some of them use such alluring expressions as "a miracle of concealed hearing" . . . "sensational new discovery" . . . and other highly exaggerated claims. But actually, the biggest difference in better hearing aids today is the price!

How is Zenith able to offer hearing aids of such exceptional quality at such sensible prices? Zenith's outstanding quality is a direct result of over 38 years of leadership and growth in electronics exclusively. As for price: if Zenith paid commissions of $145 to $160, as some do, even our $65 model would have to sell for over $200! See, try, compare!

See the new 4- and 5-transistor Zenith models, including the tiny at-the-ear "Diplomat." By wearing a "Diplomat" at each ear you can enjoy the benefits of "binaural" hearing, and still at less cost than many "single-ear" aids. Hear our convincing demonstration!

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Celebrities Make Her Tongue Tied:
Occasionally I go to gatherings where I meet celebrities and am always at a loss as to what to say. Can you give me some help to alleviate my nervousness?

Answers:
Celebrities are as human as you or anyone else. They are in demand by the public and therefore meet many people. If you put yourself in their place for a Louise Davis moment, you will realize how repetitious remarks can be when greeting people. Think how many times they hear, "I've heard and read so much about you," or "I've just read your book," or "Your acting is divine!" If you are at a loss to say something, just "How do you do" is easier on the celebrity than stock remarks that can be very boring. It is a challenge to come up with something original, sincere, tactful and appropriate, yet not have it sound as if you had rehearsed it. Just try to say something that nobody else might have said. You have a perfect entree if you have something in common, such as, "I understand we have a mutual friend, Wesley Hubbard," or "You and I are alumnae of the same college," or "You and I grew up in the same city." Those kind of remarks can make a greeting pleasant. If you have the knack of being impulsively amusing, all the better, just so you sense that the celebrity will be entertained by it.

Vows, Rings Exchanged In St. Andrew's Church

Miss Darlyne Joyce Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brock Robertson, 2715 Mt. Stephen Avenue, and Bernard Anderson, son of Mrs. M. Anderson, 2614 Roseberry Avenue, and the late Mr. A. Anderson, exchanged wedding vows and rings in an evening ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Friday, Dr. J. L. W. McLean officiated.

Baskets of white snapdragons, blue iris and white gladioli were placed at the front of the church, and pews were marked with white gladioli blooms. Organist, C. C. Warren, played during the ceremony.

The bride was radiant in a gown styled on princess lines with lily point sleeves and a bouffant skirt extending into a graceful train. The dress of white silk taffeta featured inserts of pearl-embroidered lace at the yoke and hipline. Her chapel veil of net was held to a bandeau of pearl and sequin embroidered lace. Her pearl necklace and matching earrings were the groom's gift. Her bouquet was a cascade of bridal red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Barbara Hill, maid of honor, and Mrs. Joan Shields, bridesmatron, wore empire line gowns with fitted bodices and full skirts of pale blue broadcloth taffeta. Miss Donna Robertson, cousin of the bride, bridesmaid, and Miss Carolyn Robertson, sister of the bride, junior bridesmaid, wore identical empire styled dresses of pink broadcloth taffeta.

The attendants wore headbands to match their gowns. Senior attendants carried colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations. Flower girl, Miss Bonnie Robertson, youngest sister of the bride, wore a pink nylon frock trimmed with lace. She wore a matching headband and carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

The groom had Lorne Thornton as best man. Ushers were Jack Shields, Vic Dale and Ivan Anderson, brother of the groom.

A reception was held in the Golden Slipper Ballroom, where Alec Hutcheson, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast. For a honeymoon trip motoring up-Island and then to Vancouver and into Oregon, the bride wore a pink linen sheath dress with pink and black accessories, a royal blue cashmere coat and corsage of pink carnations.

Admiral's Daughter, Sarah Pullen Wed in Ceremony in St. Paul's

The bells of St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, Esquimalt, rang out as Miss Mary Allison Sarah Pullen, daughter of Rear-Admiral and Mrs. Hugh F. Pullen, Admiral's House, HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, was escorted by her father into the church Saturday afternoon to become the bride of Mr. Brian William Ferriman McLoughlin, son of Mr. J. H. McLoughlin, Sussex, England, and Mrs. H. L. Robinson, Vancouver.

The bride, her father, and entourage of seven were preceded up the aisle of the church by St. Paul's junior choir who sang, "Praise My Soul The King of Heaven."

Rev. J. A. Roberts performed the ceremony. The bride chose a classically-styled gown of ivory organza over taffeta, fashioned with bateau neckline, sheer organza wrist-length sleeves and a slightly-dropped waistline from which a gathered skirt of organza extended into a train. A family veil of lace-embroidered ivory net cascaded gracefully from a circlet of stephanotis and orange blossoms. The bride's bouquet was of ivory-toned gladioli and lily of the valley.

Miss Tinker Pullen, sister of the bride, and Miss Wendy Pullen of Oakville, Ont., cousin of the bride, were identically gowned in princess-style dresses of pale turquoise organza poised over matching Swiss cotton. Empire waistlines were banded with matching velvet ribbons which formed streamers to hems of the skirts.

Miss Margo Pullen, sister of the bride, wore an identically-styled gown of turquoise organza over yellow Swiss cotton with turquoise ribbons, while the bride's youngest sisters, twins Helen and Frances Pullen wore organza dresses of sunshine yellow with square necklines and waistline ribbons of matching yellow velvet. The attendants carried bouquets of Piccadilly gladioli.

Master William Pullen, brother of the bride, and Master John Phillips were train bearers. Mr. John McLoughlin was best man for his brother. Ushering were Mr. Howard Eckman, Mr. William Robinson, Mr. James Helmsken and Lieut. Hugh Pullen.

Guests were received by the wedding couple and family in the garden at Admiral's House following the ceremony. Mrs. Pullen, mother of the bride, wore for the occasion a model ensemble of rose de bois lace with en tone hat styled with fluted straw dipped brim. Her corsage was of deep red roses. Mrs. Robinson, mother of the groom, wore a navy blue ensemble, complemented with a white rosebud corsage.

A wedding cake encircled with a wreath of white gladioli blooms was cut by the couple. Mr. M. W. MacKenzie of Comox, P.Q., proposed the toast to the bride's happiness. Flowers from friends of the bride's family in Victoria graced Admiral's House and the church.

Mr. and Mrs. McLoughlin will travel in the United Kingdom and on the Continent for two months before returning to Vancouver to make their home.

MINER DIES IN SLIDE 400 FEET UNDERGROUND

LYKENS, Pa. (AP) — David Snyder, 34-year-old coal miner, was found dead Monday night deep in a central Pennsylvania mine near here. He had been trapped 400 feet below the surface since Friday.

Snyder, the father of three children, had not been heard from since five hours after the slide which trapped him in a passageway of the South Mountain Mine. Mine inspectors heard tapping from a wall until then.

Torches Free Youth Entombed in Vault

NEW HAVEN, Mich. (AP) — "I didn't think I was going to make it," said 17-year-old John Chaffee as he stumbled, coughing and weeping, from a grimy abandoned bank vault Sunday night after being entombed 4½ hours.

John fought off hysteria, mounting heat and thinning air while Detroit locksmiths rushed to the scene to release him. Smoke from the cutting torches was "pretty awful," John said, "but I crouched in a corner, pulled my jacket over my head and kept my eyes shut real tight. It was sure wonderful to see that door open."

Chaffee, a New Haven high school senior, and Richard Schroudt, 19, were among a group of young persons cleaning up the old bank building. In a bit of horseplay Chaffee ducked into the vault and Schroudt pushed the heavy door shut.

Sites for Canada's First Radio Telescope Being Tested on Island

Sites are being tested for the construction of a radio telescope in British Columbia, Dr. R. M. Petrie, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Saanich, announced on the weekend.

The telescope, to be used for measuring radio waves given off by the planets and stars, will be constructed within the next two years, he said.

It will be Canada's first radio telescope.

One of the proposed sites is on Lake Cowichan, Dr. Petrie said. That area has been found suitable. He added, however, that several sites in the interior of the province will have to be tested before any decision is made.

These tests are being carried out by Edward Argyle of the

BENNY TELLS OF ORDEAL IN WELL

'I Was Never Scared---I Was Mad I Was Swearing---Wet and Cold'

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Benny Hooper, Jr., says he was wet and cold—and mad—but never scared during his 23½-hour ordeal at the bottom of a narrow well.

"The dirt was pressing against me," said the seven-year-old youngster. "I tried to wiggle loose. I wasn't scared."

Young Benny, who fell into the 24-foot deep well in back of his parents' Long Island home, conceded that "I cried" occasionally.

The youngster gave the first account of his experience in bits of conversations with his parents and friends Sunday at nearby Bayview Hospital. Art Bergman, staff writer for the Long Island newspaper Newsday, recorded the remarks.

TELLS STORY

Benny told of his feelings inside the deep well: "It was dark. My coat was over my head. I could breathe swell. There was cold air all around me."

"I was mad. I was swearing. It was cold and my feet were wet. I could feel sand between my teeth. It made me mad."

"I called 'Mommy, mommy,' but I couldn't hear anything," Benny recalled the first minutes after he toppled into the well:

"I heard Pop call. Pop said, 'Are you hurt?' I said I wasn't. He said I should wiggle my hand if I was all right. I wiggled my hand. The dirt was pressing against me. I tried to wiggle loose. I wasn't scared."

SLEPT OFTEN

Benny told his listeners that he slept often but did not know that efforts were being made to rescue him.

"I went to sleep and I woke up lots of times," he related. "The last time I went to sleep I woke up in bed." Benny said, referring to his awakening in a hospital Friday evening after his rescue. He fell into the well Thursday night.

"My mommy was there," he recalled. "I said 'where am I,' and she said I was in a hospital. I wanted to go home."

Today Benny came out of an oxygen tent.

Dr. J. H. Kris said a minor lung inflammation had been cleared and that Benny probably will be able to leave the hospital by the weekend.

"He's doing well and feeling well," Kris said.

Benny's temperature, which had reached 102 degrees Saturday, the day after his rescue, was back to normal Monday.

A shirt for the man who earns over $10,000

You will never find this cloth in ordinary shirts. It is loomed exclusively by John and David Anderson, the great Glaswegian weavers, and is called Zephyr Gingham. It is so extraordinarily weightless that you hardly know you are wearing it. Zephyr Gingham makes up into the finest sport shirts in the world.

Look at the picture. There's a lot in it you can see; how the shoulders are cut full for action, how the pattern is scrupulously matched at sleeve and pocket. But what you can't see is the careful tailoring of this unusual shirt. Each sleeve is made from a single piece of cloth. The shirt is single-needle stitched throughout—something you never find in a mass-produced shirt.

With a choice of long or short sleeves, this Wellington costs $12.95. You can buy it, in a selection of classic checks and stripes, at stores which still consider quality before price.

... LOVE A PARADE

Spectators' eyes swung left as a mighty display of army units passed by in a grand parade Monday. Queen's Own Rifles were headed by 100 men from

Victorians Turn Out in Record Numbers for Holiday Attractions

Victorians ignored threatening weather over the weekend to gather in record numbers at holiday festivities.

An estimated 30,000 saw the longest, gayest parade in the city's history Monday morning. Saturday night, 2,000 attended a pageant of drill teams, dancers and bands in Memorial Arena.

A slightly over-cast Sunday afternoon saw another 1,000 at a band concert in Beacon Hill Park, a like number at the Motorcycle Roadshow in Royal Athletic Park, and 2,000 at speedboat races at Thetis Lake.

One of Canada's top military bands, the RCAF band from Edmonton, performed for more than 1,000 at the Royal Theatre that night.

Over Sunday and Monday, some 3,500 persons headed to the Songhees Reserve in Esquimalt, where a colorful Indian Festival included an exhibition of "Indian Rock 'n' Roll," staged by "braves" in their ceremonial dress.

Following the grand parade Monday, close to 1,000 spectators watched on the legislative grounds as Chief Justice

AS PUBLIC POWER PROJECT

Bennett Sets Terms

For Columbia Hydro

Extension of the terms of the proposed Kaiser Dam deal to the whole Columbia River hydro development was called for today by Premier Bennett.

If the federal government would accept that agreement, then the province was prepared to tackle the Columbia as a public power project, the premier said.

"But they won't accept it," the premier added.

In an interview, Mr. Bennett outlined again his government's stand on Columbia River:

In exchange for downstream benefits the U.S. should pay for all dams built on the Canadian side of the Columbia and also send back 20 per cent of the additional power generated on the U.S. side.

This was what the Kaiser Aluminum interests had agreed to for a storage dam across the Arrow Lakes near Castlegar, and the principle should be extended to the whole of the Columbia, the premier said.

(The Kaiser deal was blocked by the federal government through the International Rivers Act, which gives Ottawa control over rivers such as the Columbia.)

Mr. Bennett said U.S. interests would agree to the proposal for other dams on the Columbia, including one at Mica Creek.

Paid for by U.S. money, the dams would be turned over to the provincial government and would "automatically" become a public power operation, the premier said.

The power might be sold to private companies for distribution.

"This way we would have the dams and two million horsepower," Mr. Bennett said.

The premier accused the federal government of "interfering" in the matter.

"The federal boys have stepped into the picture now," he said, "and if they can't get a better deal they will stand condemned."

Speaking at a political meeting in Powell River Friday night, the premier said the provincial government had made the same proposal in a "secret" offer to federal Resources Minister Jean Lesage some time ago, but it had been rejected.

The whole matter of downstream benefits is under discussion today at a conference in Washington, D.C., between top government leaders of the U.S. and the federal government.

Lands Minister Ray Williston of B.C. is attending as an "observer."

Under the plan he proposed today, Premier Bennett would call on the federal government for loans to finance immediate construction of the dams. These would be paid off by U.S. power interests as the downstream benefits accrued.

meeting's start is scheduled for 8.

GIRL'S TRAFFIC DEATH MARS B.C. RECORD

Death of 14-year-old Geraldine Ursel, Keremeos, spoiled an otherwise perfect record for traffic fatalities in B.C. during the holiday weekend.

The teenage daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ursel, formerly of Calgary, was killed Monday night when struck by a car while riding her bicycle near her home, the Canadian Press reported.

Holiday traffic fatalities across Canada from 6 p.m. Friday night to 12 midnight Monday totalled 46, far above the expected number. Total number of violent deaths was 74. (See page 3.)

Twister Kills 35 in Midwest

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The year's deadliest tornado slashed across Kansas City's southern outskirts at sundown Monday, leaving 35 dead and more than 200 injured in its 80-mile path.

Injured were still being dug out of wreckage this forenoon and the search for additional possible victims continued.

Martial law was declared in the Ruskin Heights-Hickman Mills area to expedite relief work, stop looting and keep out sightseers.

The death toll included 29 in the Kansas City suburbs, four at Spring Hill, Kan., and two at Ottawa, Kan., where the storm began its hop-skip scourage.

Greatest loss of life apparently was in a shopping centre at the mushrooming Ruskin Heights subdivision. Many commuters and their families were doing their customary shopping in the centre's 16 shops when the twister struck it full blast.

"At least 50 of us were in the basement, lying on top of one another three or four deep," one man said.

Although the loss of life made this the most deadly storm the U.S. has experienced since 22 were killed at Silverton, Tex., on May 15, the casualty lists were kept low by the advance warnings given repeatedly by radio and television that a severe blow was to be expected.

Everything in the primary area appeared levelled with damage extending on a diminishing scale on each side of the area. An estimated 100 homes over a six-to-eight-block path were demolished.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Angotti hurried their five children toward a hardware store as the storm came up.

"I had to hold Jennifer's hair to keep her from being blown out of my arms," Angotti said. "The wind was blowing so hard."

Police sent out a call for all available ambulances, nurses and doctors. Collection stations were set up for the injured.

Police appealed for mobile generators and portable floodlights to facilitate rescue work. The storm wiped out all power service.

The storm struck first at Ottawa, Kans., 60 miles southwest of Kansas City. One person was killed, a motel and restaurant were destroyed, five big transport trucks were unended. Some 20 houses were destroyed or heavily damaged at Rantoul, just east of Ottawa.

At Spring Hill, half way to Kansas City, the tornado smashed the new home of Isham Davis and killed all four members of the family—Davis, his wife and two daughters, 7 and 5.

MRS. WALL

WARREN B. WALL

Man, Wife, Son From Duncan Missing in Plane

Weather today blocked a 16-plane air search for a Duncan family of three in a light aircraft believed down in the treacherous Cascade Mountain area between Ellensburg and Everett in Washington state.

Chances of survival in the area are "pretty slim," according to Lieut. H. L. Horn of the U.S. Civil Air Patrol, which has a fleet of search aircraft waiting at Seattle for a break in the weather.

Missing since Sunday afternoon are Duncan contractor Warren B. Wall, his wife, Mary, 32, and son Glen, eight.

Radio contact with the plane was lost during the 115-mile flight from Ellensburg to Everett, which was designated as arrival point on the flight plan.

Mobile Ground Parties in Area

However, four ground parties of 10 men with four mobile radio units were checking out reports in the area, about 200 miles southeast of Victoria.

Search about 3:15 p.m. Sunday was concentrated on a 50-mile-square area between Ellensburg and Stampede Pass.

Ground units were checking a fire reported on a mountain Monday night.

"But so far, there have been no reliable reports," said air patrol officials.

The flight plan showed a course from Ellensburg to Stampede Pass, then to Seattle and Everett.

Mr. Wall is a partner in the Duncan construction firm of C. & W. Wall. His younger brother, Clifford, today was set to aid in the search with air patrol personnel.

The Walls took off Friday from Cassidy airport, near Nainaimo, where the plane was kept, for a short holiday in Washington. Mr. Wall started home Saturday from Ellensburg but was forced back due to bad weather.

Mr. Wall was not believed familiar with the area. He had about 60 hours of flying time, and received his licence as a private pilot early this year.

The Piper had two-way radio aboard but it was not heard after take-off.

Mr. and Mrs. Wall are both from Saskatchewan. He has been a Duncan resident about 15 years.

There are three other children in the family, twins Roy and Reg, aged nine, and Lloyd, aged four.

RCAF Air-Sea Rescue in Vancouver today was "standing by" to offer help in the search.

Russian Desire For War Lessens U.S. Experts Say

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia's "immediate capability or desire" to start a war appears to be lessening, the House of Representatives appropriations committee said today.

That statement, the committee said in a report accompanying the U.S. defence department's 1958 appropriation bill, is based on military intelligence.

107-Year-Old Dies

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP)—Charles W. Hamilton, who smoked for 100 years and then gave the habit up shortly before his 107th birthday, died today at his daughter's home. He suffered a slight stroke during the observance of his birthday May 10.

"The feeling is that she has been placed in an impossible position by misleading authoritative statements in London and Washington."

Police appealed for mobile generators and portable floodlights to facilitate rescue work. The storm wiped out all power service.

The storm struck first at Ottawa, Kans., 60 miles southwest of Kansas City. One person was killed, a motel and restaurant were destroyed, five big transport trucks were unended. Some 20 houses were destroyed or heavily damaged at Rantoul, just east of Ottawa.

At Spring Hill, half way to Kansas City, the tornado smashed the new home of Isham Davis and killed all four members of the family—Davis, his wife and two daughters, 7 and 5.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

PARIS (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh, a gawky tourist in a borrowed brown suit, set off the lustiest peacetime celebration in the gaudy history of Paris just 30 years ago today.

Lindbergh, a boyish 25-year-old, hadn't slept for two days. There are those who say Paris didn't sleep for a week after his 3,600-mile flight from New York.

MCGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP)—The U.S. Air Force said today its Spirit of St. Louis II, a jet flying the Atlantic on the anniversary of the famed Lindbergh flight, landed in Paris at 2:13 p.m. EDT, 11:13 p.m. PDT) after a record trip of six hours and 37 minutes.

DIDN'T CURTSY

Swedish Woman MP Boosed

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—A Swedish woman cabinet minister today bowed, not curtsied, to visiting Queen Juliana of The Netherlands and was booed by spectators.

All of the ministers' wives and other women presented to Juliana curtsied when presented.

Mrs. Lindstrom was criticized by some Swedish newspapers last year when she refused to curtsy to Queen Elizabeth.

Juliana and Prince Bernhard drove with King Gustaf Adolf and Queen Louise in open carriages through the crowd-lined streets of Stockholm to the royal palace.

VANCOUVER—Funeral services will be held here Wednesday for Mrs. Caroline Maude McGillivray, 72, one of the first white women born in the Cariboo district. She died Sunday in hospital here.

John Diefenbaker, who opened a five-day campaign for the Progressive Conservatives in B.C. over the holiday weekend, called Monday for speedy action on the Columbia River hydro development.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who speaks in Victoria tonight at Memorial Arena, began his tour with a Victoria Day swing through the Okanagan Valley.

"The Columbia power project must have priority in this country," he told an outdoor audience of 325 at Vernon.

"Let us take this out of political partisanship and act," the Progressive Conservative leader said.

Mr. Diefenbaker left Penticton by train early today and was scheduled to fly from Abbotsford to Victoria this afternoon, arriving at Pat Bay at 3 p.m.

A visit to Veterans' Hospital was scheduled at 3:45 p.m.

At a meeting in Penticton Monday night attended by 1,000 persons, Mr. Diefenbaker turned again to Columbia River hydro and also called for a firm line by the federal government in regard to import of U.S. farm products.

The U.S. should pay for downstream benefits on the Columbia in flood control and irrigation, with the money applied against the cost of the Mica Creek dam, he said. Payment for downstream power benefits should be in the form of power returned to Canada, not cash.

On agriculture, Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has shown no interest in the B.C. fruit and vegetable growers. It had done nothing about U.S. produce "dumped" into Canada at the end of the U.S. growing season just as the Canadian crop was coming onto the market.

More than $100,000,000 worth of U.S. farm produce had come into Canada last year—"one of the most wide open markets in the world." The U.S. market was closed to Canadian farmers whenever U.S. farmers were being harmed.

"It's about time that a Canadian government started looking after Canadians," he said at Kelowna.

At Vernon he dealt with agriculture and with the government's tight-money policy.

He said External Affairs Minister Pearson, in a recent speech had promised the government would be something for agriculture after the election.

COINCIDENCE
"What have they been doing for the last four years? It just seems sheer coincidence that after four years of inaction, in an election year action is taken."

A Conservative government would ensure farmers a fair share of the national income through price supports which would provide prices that bore a fair relationship to farmers' costs.

"That is being done in every country of the world that has any regard for agriculture."

He said the Liberal government's tight-money policy has not stopped inflation. Prices had risen. High interest rates had "struck a body blow" to small businesses while leaving big business unaffected.

"The first way to meet inflation is for a government to be its own physician and reduce unnecessary expenditures."

He said the federal government overtaxed Canadians by $500,000,000 last year. A reduction in unnecessary taxes would stimulate production and help combat inflation.

U.S. "DUMPING"

He said the Liberal government's tight-money policy has not stopped inflation. Prices had risen. High interest rates had "struck a body blow" to small businesses while leaving big business unaffected.

"The first way to meet inflation is for a government to be its own physician and reduce unnecessary expenditures."

He said the federal government overtaxed Canadians by $500,000,000 last year. A reduction in unnecessary taxes would stimulate production and help combat inflation.

U.S. "DUMPING"
On agriculture, Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has shown no interest in the B.C. fruit and vegetable growers. It had done nothing about U.S. produce "dumped" into Canada at the end of the U.S. growing season just as the Canadian

Hecklers, Unite!

WHAT the present political campaign needs is a refresher course in heckling. Maybe it has been better in some of the small intimate meetings in neighborhoods, but the home stretch, but heckling at the big meetings has been discouraging.

What I have heard to date had all the wit, point and effectiveness of two primary grade kids arguing: "My daddy can lick your daddy."

In this day and age, that isn't good enough. As the inspirational speakers say, never has the challenge been so great.

Technology has put the panzer divisions behind the platform speaker. He's equipped with amplifiers. When a heckler raises his voice, the technician employed by the candidate can turn on more juice. The sheer volume of sound from the speaker drowns out the remarks of the critic in the audience. The public may not be able to follow what the candidate is saying—he may not be able to follow it himself—but with a little more power through the public address system, it's a cinch the heckler can't be heard at all.

TIME FOR STRATEGY

So the hecklers had better resort to strategy. Tanks can be stopped. The Loyalists in the Spanish civil war developed a technique with bottles of oil and gasoline they called Molotov-cocktails. So did some of the freedom fighters in Hungary. It's up to the experts in the back of the hall to figure some counter-measure to the amplifier—not deadly, but devastating.

Of course they could call on technology too. Why haven't any hecklers shown up with "walkie-talkies" to put them on more even terms with the man with the mike? Why haven't the electronics people come up with a new transistor model that gives mechanical power to the voice in the back row?

That seems a natural for some enterprising firm. They could make a device and rent it out. You can see the advertising slogan: "Heckling tonight? Try our pocket bullroar."

Or what's wrong with a little gentle sabotage? Why can't hecklers work in pairs—one to pull the candidate's power switch while the other makes his pitch from the floor?

There is an apparent and unfortunate lack of imagination on the part of hecklers. They're not really putting their hearts or minds into their jobs. They're just letting it all go by default.

But even if they achieved some mechanical methods of making themselves heard, that would not be enough. They're just not working on their heckling.

LONELY HECKLE

"Why did you vote with Russia?" has been about the liveliest heckle at major Liberal meetings here. It has a good, round ring, like "Have you stopped beating your wife?" But you can't ride out a whole campaign with one heckle—particularly when a man like Mike Pearson shoots it down in flames.

However you figure it, hecklers ought to get together, hold a refresher course, work out mechanical techniques and get some new lines.

Me, I'm inclined to favor the extraneous heckle. You can do things at a political meeting if you jump up, stagger a bit as if the opposition had prepaid you in the cocktail lounge, and yell "Who killed Cock Robin?" Or you can disconcert almost any candidate by leaping to your feet, pointing your finger at him and shouting "What about Joe Giotz?" He's never heard of Joe Giotz. If you're emphatic enough, you can have him so busy trying to put a body to the name he stands a good chance of forgetting his speech.

But you can't do these things—you can't toss off these bon mots—unless you do your homework. You have to prepare. And you should. You owe it to the public and the campaign. Somebody has to get it off the ground.

Nothing like a good heckler to at least get meetings way up in the air. There's a challenge, there, men. Are you going to run away from it? Or are you going to boob the whole deal by lack of preparation?

YOUR HEALTH

When to Go to a Doctor

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

In a recent issue of The American Journal of Medicine, there is an amusing story by Drs. Burwell, Robin, Whaley and Bickelmann about a 263-pound executive who, for years, had had a tendency to drop off to sleep at inopportune times. What finally caused him to go to a hospital for strenuous treatment was the fact that, while playing poker, he fell asleep as he was being dealt three aces and two kings. When he woke and looked at his cards—too late to bid them—he decided that it was high time he went to a doctor.

Years ago I had a patient something like this one who came to me when he had to quit playing poker. His difficulty was that whenever he got a wonderful hand, he got so excited that his face turned scarlet and everyone at the table knew enough not to bid!

FAMILY RECORD OF ILLNESS

Every so often when I suspect that a patient's epilepsy or mental disturbance is based on an attack of encephalitis or meningitis or brain fever, I am unable to learn if, in childhood, he ever had any serious illness, with severe headache and mental confusion, perhaps following an attack of measles. The patient says he doesn't know, and his mother may say that, with eight children, she cannot remember what each one had.

Similarly, if it looks as if the few convulsions a man had might be hereditary in nature, and I ask him if there was anything like epilepsy in his family, again, he is likely to say "I don't know." As I write this, in comes a fine young man who is planning to marry in the next few months. There has been a case of what looks like epilepsy in the immediate family, and the young couple, both able and highly intelligent college graduates, are wondering if they should have children. These young people know much about what their parents and uncles and aunts were like, but they know almost nothing about their grandparents and their great-uncles and aunts. Without the necessary information, it is hard for a genetic counselor to help them.

Back in 1884, Sir Francis Galton, one of the greatest men England ever produced, published a couple of blank-page books, one called Record of Family Faculties, the other, Life History Album. He felt so strongly that one of the great things that all intelligent heads of families should do would be to record in such a book all that was known about the illnesses and, particularly, hereditary illnesses, in the family as far back as information was available. Mothers should keep a record of the illnesses sustained by their children, with notes on what the doctor said at the time.

Ease Tourist Curbs to U.S., Canada, U.K. Papers Urge

LONDON (Reuters) — British newspapers are calling on the government to ease dollar restrictions and permit more Britons to visit the United States and Canada.

The Manchester Guardian complains that the doors to Canada and the U.S. "are still locked and guarded against the British tourist by the chancellor of the exchequer."

It would cost only $14,000,000 for the government to give 50,000 Britons the standard £100 travel allowance which now is permitted

CRANBROOK, B.C. (CP) — Delegates to the provincial convention of the Canadian Legion here Monday criticized the federal government for paying big allowances to Hungarian refugees than to veterans.

Adam Williams, chairman of the pension committee, said Legionnaires want to know why Ottawa pays $3 a day board and room allowance to Hungarian refugees while a single war veteran who cannot support himself gets only $60 a month.

(At Moncton, N.B., Immigration Minister Pickersgill said today financial assistance to Hungarian refugees goes only to the organizations caring for them and it is discontinued when they find jobs.)

Mr. Williams told the 23rd convention of the British Columbia and northwestern states command that the $3 payment to Hungarians is an acknowledgment by the government that war veterans allowances are not enough to live on.

The convention was told that a Hungarian family—husband, wife, and two children—would receive

'Pinching' Sure Cure Against Spittle Bugs

The weekend has featured windy and showery weather, a parade and spittle bugs, the last named having roused the ire of the local gardening fraternity.

Whether you know them as frog hoppers, cuckoo spit, leaf hoppers, or spittle bugs, the originators of these miniature bubble baths belong to the group of sucking insects called aphids.

During their bubble-blowing period they are referred to as nymphs, quite ugly and in no way resembling the beautiful girls of mythology.

Until the release of Edwin Way Teale's remarkable photos and observations we were led to believe the froth was formed by wing movement or an egg-beater motion of the tail.

Teale has shown us that five minutes after the nymph starts sucking sap from a plant a clear liquid is secreted composed of sap and waxy body chemicals forming a kind of natural soap.

At the same time, air is drawn in between a pair of plates under the abdomen and forced out under pressure to make uniform bubbles from the secretion. Tail movement operates the bellows, and accounts for the egg-beater theory of earlier observers.

The first bubbles are picked up by the rear legs and placed over the insect's head, later ones being distributed over the body, forming a protection from the heat of the sun, birds, other insects, and the gardener with his spray gun.

Eggs are laid during autumn and hatch in May, those of the pine spittle bug on conifers, the lined spittle bug on grasses, the strawberry spittle bug on strawberries, while the blueberry spittle bug favors blueberry and huckleberry.

Rarely do we have a serious infestation, our plants usually outgrowing the distorted appearance now so evident. Rotenone dusts and sprays are generally recommended, but the insects must be contacted by the poison, an impossible task while the froth protects them.

Stomach poisons sprayed over the plants are useless because we are dealing with an insect which sucks sap instead of devouring portions of leaves.

Washing the froth and nymphs from the plants with a garden hose exposes them to the sun and many will not survive. Pinching between the fingers means positive extermination.

District Schools Face Record Fall Enrolment

U.S. VISITORS CHARGE STREET BEATING HERE

Two members of a visiting group of Tacoma, Wash., boys claimed Sunday to have been beaten by a pair of black-trousered youths carrying a switch knife and a length of knotted rope.

One attacker was said to have worn a black leather jacket with the word "Saints" written on the back.

Police were told by a man who identified himself as a member of the Tacoma police department and in charge of the party, that the two boys were beaten on Yates Street in front of the Dominion Hotel about 2 p.m.

Apart from the clothing description, the visitors were able to say only that one wore a brown shirt and was tattooed on the forearm.

Greater Victoria schools will bulge with a record enrollment this fall but a program of controlled crowding is expected to avoid use of shift systems.

Early registration indicates new students will create a need for 30 additional classrooms. They won't be ready.

Where 517 youngsters will graduate, about 1,900 are expected to be added to the district student body.

GRADUATION CEREMONIES SCHEDULED

Graduation and award days of Greater Victoria high and junior high schools were listed by the school board today.

Graduation ceremonies will be held at the following dates: Esquimalt High May 31, Oak Bay High June 7, Mount Douglas High May 31, Mount View High May 31, and Victoria High June 7.

Award days will be as follows:

Esquimalt High June 13, Oak Bay High June 14, Mount Douglas High June 26, Mount View High June 14, Victoria High June 12.

At the junior high level, the following are award days: Lansdowne Junior High June 27, Oak Bay Junior High June 27, S. J. Willis Junior High June 26, Central and Colquhoun Junior Highs have not yet set dates.

Son Pins Father With Family Car

A fractured leg was the most serious injury suffered by a dozen persons hurt in traffic accidents on the holiday and taken to hospital for treatment.

Maj. Sidney Digby, 1151 Clavelly, suffered the leg injury Saturday when the car his 14-year-old son was driving into his garage pinned him to the wall.

Bennett Campaign Set to Reach Prairies in June

Premier Bennett disclosed more of his federal election campaign plans today.

Speaking engagements have been confirmed for him in Saskatoon, Regina and Winnipeg during the first week in June.

Other meetings will probably be arranged, the premier said, but he would not say for sure whether he would continue on to make a second foray into Ontario.

This week Mr. Bennett will attend a concrete pouring ceremony at the Deas Island tunnel in Richmond Wednesday, and addresses a Social Credit rally in the Royal Theatre here Friday night.

Next week he will be campaigning in the Okanagan.

Rites Wednesday For Elevator Man

A man who operated the elevator in the Yarrow Building for many years, known to thousands of Victorians, will be buried Wednesday.

Percy Lucey, 58, born in North Battleford, Sask., died Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital. Funeral will be held at 3:15 p.m. in Chaplin's chapel with Rev. A. I. Higgins officiating. Burial will be in Royal Oak.

Funeral Service Held Today For Mrs. A. Matson, Aged 91

Mrs. Ada Teresa Matson, widow of the late J. S. H. Matson, F.R.G.S., for many years publisher of The Daily Colonist, died Saturday at her home at 847 Dunsmuir.

She was 91 years of age.

A private funeral service was conducted at Mrs. Matson's residence today by Canon George Biddle, followed by interment at Ross Bay Cemetery.

Mrs. Matson was formerly Ada Teresa Galley. She is survived by one son, T. H. Matson, and one daughter, Mrs. Vivian Matson Cousland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. H. Matson were married in Victoria in 1889 soon after Mr. Matson came out here from his home in Toronto.

Visitors Report $100 Stolen Here During Holiday

Apartment and hotel room thieves took more than $100 in cash from two guest rooms at the weekend.

At 1407 Fort, Suite 206 was entered by an unlocked front door and while two women slept, a thief took three purses containing about $70 total, which had been left in the bedroom.

It was estimated the theft occurred after 1 a.m. Saturday. Purses later were found in various parts of the building.

Sunday morning at 5:35 an American seaman, Leon Lobel, USS Coral Sea, Bremerton, Wash., was in his room at Strathcona Hotel when a young man walked in, took his trousers containing a wallet with $80 and personal papers, and walked out.

Culprit was described as blond, curly-haired, in his early 20's, wearing sports coat and gaucho shirt.

ASK The TIMES

Q—Will you please tell me when the Conservative party under Sir Richard McBride (and later W. J. Bowser) came into office, and in what year were the Conservatives defeated in the British Columbia elections?

—T. H. H.

A—McBride, who introduced party government in B.C., the system before that having been only a question of the "Ins" and the "Outs," became premier June 1, 1903, and held office till Dec. 15, 1915. He was succeeded as premier by Hon. W. J. Bowser K.C., Dec. 15, 1915, who held office till Nov. 23, 1916.

The Liberals having won the 1916 general election, H. C. Brewster became premier Nov. 23, 1916, and held office till March 1, 1918.

Q—What day of the week was Nov. 11, 1918, when fighting in the First World War ended?

A—It was a Monday.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

MONT ROBERTS

Names make news, but not necessarily... Peter Evans, manager of the Furness, Withy Ltd., Vancouver office, sends thanks for an item in the Times reporting the U.K. steamship owners will transport the Queen's Totem—and asks, a little wistfully, if we can use our influence with Mungo Martin to include the Furness House Flag somewhere on the pole... sorry, but Mungo tells me the pole will be covered with Indian symbols, each of which means Tsa-Cam-Tsa-Tsa, which, roughly translated, comes out "land of the sky blue waters"... and our local Furness man (no puns, please) Cec Ridout has a message for W. A. McAdam at B.C. house... had a visitor here on a combined business and sight-seeing trip from Lunnon... when Cec outlined plans for seeing a bit of Vancouver Island, visitor said he was sorry, he didn't know the place was so big... he'd only allowed three hours for his look-around... next time, he'd set aside a full day!!!

Visitors here from their present home in Calgary are the Wally Grieves... plus 18-month-old son... she was the former Kay Knights, a radio writing type... Wally is now in the stationary business but is still far from stationary over a set of drums... he'll sit in with old pal Buddy Glover at the Club Tango Wednesday night for a session of polite (at least at the outset) jazz... Buddy and associates dropped a few bucks on their teen-agers-only dance Saturday afternoon... only 41 youngsters turned up for their very own show... they don't want to be alone?

Up-coming shifts in the navy information office will see the Esquimalt SIO, Bev Gillespie, heading for Ottawa come September... he'll be preceded eastward in June by his assistant, Charlie Taylor... and coming back home after an Ottawa sojourn will be ex-Victoria reporter, now navy PR type Ray Wormald... Gillespie is preparing for transfer by pretending his boat is for sale... which he has been doing for several months but somehow still keeps it for one more weekend of not catching fish...

Bob Wallace was one of the few honest adults watching the Monday parade... HE didn't pretend he only came to please the kids... Beaver Lake level up slightly Sunday as large Lance Whittaker took his initial swim of the season... Jack Ozaro's little league farm team crashed through for a win Sunday and now Jack is wondering how to keep 'em down on the farm...

As for me, I'm just wondering how to keep 'em...

Anita Long Makes Chilly Comox Swim

Anita Long, Victoria, long distance swimmer and bookkeeper at Diggon's, on Monday became the first person to complete the three-mile swim from Courtenay to Comox.

She set off at 1:52 p.m. from a point 300 yards upstream from the Courtenay River bridge, and landed at Comox one hour and 48 minutes later.

"She was feeling fine and could have swum on and on," her coach and navigator, Bud Phillips, said today.

The glacier-fed river was a chill 43 degrees, and the harbor, where she had to fight a back eddy, was only 46 degrees. She was sponsored on this swim by her employers here in Victoria.

Her first attempt was in early March, when she had to stop because of extreme cold. She can claim she made the successful swim when she was only 17, since she is celebrating her 18th birthday today.

CLARA HORNE was official sampler for her mom at Vancouver Island Indian Festival barbeque pit. Mrs. Grace Horne held salmon slices before huge wood fire in toaster-like frame. Crowd ate it up.

"Stay within sight of shore - I've got a little pain and I don't want you removing my appendix with any sharpened spoon!"

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Celebrities Make Her Tongue Tied:
Occasionally I go to gatherings where I meet celebrities and am always at a loss as to what to say. Can you give me some help to alleviate my nervousness?

Louise Davis
Answers:
Celebrities are as human as you or anyone else. They are in demand by the public and therefore meet many people. If you put yourself in their place for a Louise Davis moment, you will realize how repetitious remarks can be when greeting people. Think how many times they hear, "I've heard and read so much about you", or "I've just read your book", or "Your acting is divine!" If you are at a loss to say something, just "How do you do" is easier on the celebrity than stock remarks that can be very boring. It is a challenge to come up with something original, sincere and tactful and appropriate, yet not have it sound as if you had rehearsed it. Just try to say something that nobody else might have said. You have a perfect entree if you have something in common, such as, "I understand we have a mutual friend, Wesley Hubbard", or "You and I are alumnae of the same college", or "You and I grew up in the same city". Those kind of remarks can make a greeting pleasant. If you have the knack of being impulsively amusing, all the better, just so you sense that the celebrity will be entertained by it.

Family Camping Trip Nice But No Rest Cure for Mom

A camping trip for the entire family, including small children, is something well worth doing once in a while, but do not delude yourself that it is a rest cure for the woman in the home.

Usually she is responsible for the same duties she has at home all year long, without the conveniences of home. Often she must constantly be alert as to the safety of her small fry to see that they do not tumble over a cliff, drown in nearby water or get lost in the woods, to say nothing of stubbed toes, skinned knees and snake bites.

Just the preparation and "get off" are calculated to give her a nervous fit. Then she must prepare three meals a day with makeshift equipment for cooking and cleaning up, and must usually put up a running fight against insects and sunburn. After a couple of weeks of this, even though she may not say so, getting back home to modern conveniences, a comfortable bed, a fenced in back yard, a baby sitter and routine, will seem like a vacation. May be men allow that the little woman will better appreciate what she has if she is taken periodically on a nice long camping trip.

The camping trip is a family institution and I do not recommend that it be discontinued. I am only suggesting that it be valued for its family relations, for the adventure it brings children, for the outdoor life it provides, for fishing for father, not as a rest for mother.

If you are hard-of-hearing, you naturally want a hearing aid that is inconspicuous . . . something really new and different.

Beck Replaced by Foe in AFL-CIO

WASHINGTON (AP)—John F. English, general secretary-treasurer of the teamsters union, today was reported elected to the AFL-CIO executive council spot from which Dave Beck was ousted Monday.

English, who had been opposing Beck's activities within the teamsters organization for several years, is a 67-year-old veteran and respected leader in the giant truck union.

Ike Submits Trimmed 'Peace' Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower formally submitted a trimmed-down $3,865,000,000 foreign aid program today and told Congress the only sound way to get a substantial tax cut is "to succeed in waging peace."

Eisenhower told congressmen they face a grave responsibility to maintain foreign aid "at a level dictated by the dangers we face."

Cowichan Copper Purchases Mill

VANCOUVER (CP)—Cowichan Copper Ltd. announced today it has purchased a mill for its Vancouver Island property and hopes to have it in operation within six months.

President Oswald G. MacDonald said the company is assured of a minimum production of 12,000,000 pounds of copper annually and is confident of showing a net profit of $2,000,000 a year for the first three years.

Vancouver Man Remanded in Slaying

VANCOUVER (CP)—Calvin Henry Klingbell, 23, Kelowna, today was remanded one week when he appeared in magistrate's court charged with the knife-slaying of west-side grocer Lee Yick Yung, 53.

Police said Yung, found in his store Saturday with three stab wounds in his throat, apparently died during a holdup attempt. They said a man was standing nearby holding a knife in his hand when they arrived.

Floods Create Emergency in Idaho

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Heavy rains finally let up today in the inland empire, where floods and the threat of floods became so serious that Governor Robert Smylie declared a state of emergency in Idaho.

Unemployment Slightly Up From 1956

OTTAWA (CP)—The government reported today that since January there has been a gradual increase in unemployment compared with a year ago.

A joint monthly statement issued by the bureau of statistics and the labor department said this was caused "because the growth in the labor force was particularly strong while the increase in employment was moderated by weaknesses in the forestry and construction industries."

British Firms' Assets Seized

Wire, Cable Companies Taken Over By Egyptian Communications Dept.

CAIRO (AP)—The Egyptian government today took over the mainly British-owned Marconi and Eastern-International Telegraph and Cable Companies.

Communications Minister Mustapha Khalil announced the companies are being "Egyptianized and annexed to ministry for communications, giving them the name 'foreign communications department'."

They had been sequestered since the Anglo-French attack on Egypt last November. Khalil said banks had been instructed to transfer the companies' assets in the name of the ministry of communication into the central bank, both at Cairo and Alexandria.

Khalil said the government took this step because the companies' concession to operate here expired last January.

British and French-owned banks and insurance companies already have been Egyptianized. Banks and insurance houses with other foreign interests have been given five years' grace.

Bennett Sets Terms For Columbia Hydro

(See Page 3)

Extension of the terms of the proposed Kaiser Dam deal to the whole Columbia River hydro development was called for today by Premier Bennett.

If the federal government would accept that agreement, then the province was prepared to tackle the Columbia as a public power project, the premier said.

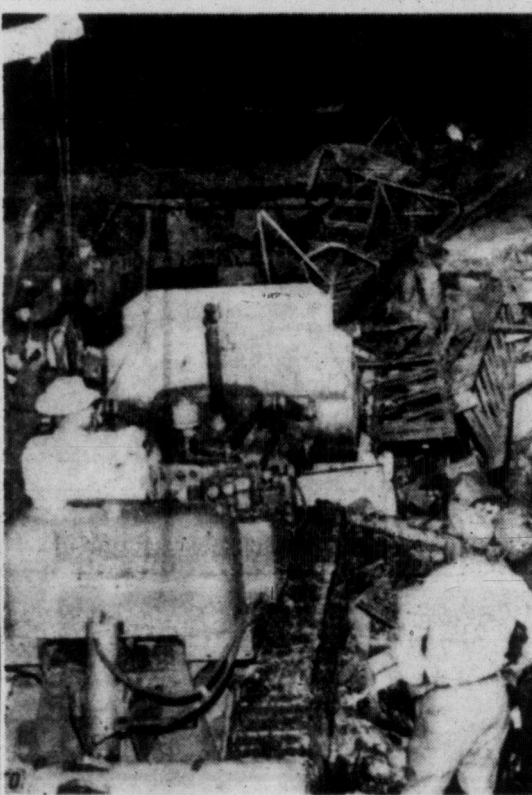

"But they won't accept it," the premier added.

In an interview, Mr. Bennett outlined again his government's stand on Columbia River:

In exchange for downstream benefits the U.S. should pay for all dams built on the Canadian side of the Columbia and also send back 20 per cent of the additional power generated on the U.S. side.

This was what the Kaiser Aluminum interests had agreed to for a storage dam across the Arrow Lakes near Castlegar, and the principle should be extended to the whole of the Columbia, the premier said.

(The Kaiser deal was blocked by the federal government

STORM FLARES ON U.S. VISIT

Cheering Danes Welcome Queen

COPENHAGEN (CP)—Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip landed in Copenhagen today to begin a three-day state visit to Denmark.

The Queen and her husband, accompanied by King Frederik of Denmark, stepped ashore from the Danish royal barge as crowds of spectators cheered.

Elizabeth broke into a warm smile when 17-year-old Princess Margrethe, heiress-presumptive to the Danish throne, kissed her on the cheek.

Crowds stood six deep at the hotel palace.

Hotel rooms were so short that persons who poured into the city Monday night paid to sleep in bathrooms.

This is the first British royal state visit to Denmark since James VI of Scotland, later James I of England, came to Copenhagen in 1589 to claim his bride, Princess Anne of Denmark.

After Lisbon and Paris, this was the third official visit of the year for Queen Elizabeth.

But the Danish visit comes at a time when there are persistent reports that she will not visit the United States this fall.

A foreign office spokesman said in London Monday that

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

PARIS (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh, a gawky tourist in a borrowed brown suit, set off the "lustrous peacetime celebration in the gaudy history of Paris just 30 years ago today.

Lindbergh, a boyish 25-year-old, hadn't slept for two days. There are those who say Paris didn't sleep for a week after his 3,600-mile flight from New York.

MCGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP)—The U.S. Air Force said today its Spirit of St. Louis II, a jet flying the Atlantic on the anniversary of the famed Lindbergh flight, landed in Paris at 2:13 p.m. EDT, 11:13 p.m. PDT after a record trip of six hours and 37 minutes.

Chalmers' Conviction For James Bay Bank Robbery Upheld

Victoria bank bandit Colin W. Chalmers, 24, lost his appeal today from a sentence of 20 years the Canadian Press reports from Vancouver.

He was convicted in Victoria assize court on March 28 of robbing the James Bay branch of Canadian Bank of Commerce of $3,600 on Feb. 11 and was sentenced by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes.

In his recent appeal against the sentence, at Victoria court house, Chalmers sobbed hysterically as he told the judges he robbed the bank in order to get money for his family who were in "financial difficulties."

A succession of witnesses told of his unhappy background and spoke of his "great generosity" towards those around him.

The character witnesses included W. A. Scott, whose plea that Chalmers be "given a psychiatric examination was granted by the court.

Chalmers' sister, Mrs. Betty Coleman, 3450 Doncaster, told the court that after her father's death Colin told her he wished he could die too, and be able "to go where Dad has gone."

Chalmers, she stated, had sung in a church choir and had belonged to a Sunday school class. "He believed what he was taught... he was frustrated all his life," she said.

Air Search Set For Island Trio

Weather today blocked a 16-plane air search for a Duncan family of three in a light aircraft believed down in the treacherous Cascade Mountain area between Ellensburg and Everett in Washington state.

Chances of survival in the area are "pretty slim," according to Lieut. H. L. Horn of the U.S. Civil Air Patrol, which has a fleet of search aircraft waiting at Seattle for a break in the weather.

Missing since Sunday afternoon are Duncan contractor Warren B. Wall, his wife, Mary, 32, and son Glen, eight.

Radio contact with the plane was lost during the 115-mile flight from Ellensburg to Everett, which was designated as arrival point on the flight plan.

Mobile Ground Parties in Area

However, four ground parties of 10 men with four mobile radio units were checking out reports in the area, about 200 miles southeast of Victoria. Search about 3:15 p.m. Sunday was concentrated on a 50-mile-square area between Ellensburg and Stampede Pass.

Ground units were checking a fire reported on a mountain Monday night.

"But so far, there have been no reliable reports," said air patrol officials.

The flight plan showed a course from Ellensburg to Stampede Pass, then to Seattle and Everett.

Tories Whoop It Up for Big Rally

Victoria's Progressive Conservative organization was going all out today to try to fill Memorial Arena tonight for John Diefenbaker, the party's new leader, who is making a major campaign speech here.

PC workers this morning tucked dodger sheets under windshield wipers of thousands of cars around town. They were leaving no avenue unexplored to attract a 6,500 capacity crowd and make it the biggest rally of the campaign here.

Mr. Diefenbaker's arrival was timed for 3 p.m., and the meeting's start is scheduled for 8.

Swedish Woman MP Boomed

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—A Swedish woman cabinet minister today bowed, not curtsied, to visiting Queen Juliana of the Netherlands and was booed by spectators.

All of the ministers' wives and other women presented to Juliana curtsied when presented.

Mrs. Lindstrom was criticized by some Swedish newspapers last year when she refused to curtsy to Queen Elizabeth.

Juliana and Prince Bernhard drove with King Gustaf Adolf and Queen Louise in open carriages through the crowded streets of Stockholm to the royal palace.

John Diefenbaker, who opened a five-day campaign for the Progressive Conservatives in B.C. over the holiday weekend, called Monday for speedy action on the Columbia River hydro development.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who speaks in Victoria tonight at Memorial Arena, began his tour with a Victoria Day swing through the Okanagan Valley.

"The Columbia power project must have priority in this country," he told an outdoor audience of 325 at Vernon.

"Let us take this out of political partisanship and act," the Progressive Conservative leader said.

Mr. Diefenbaker left Penticton by train early today and was scheduled to fly from Abbotsford to Victoria this afternoon, arriving at Pat Bay at 3 p.m.

A visit to Veterans' Hospital was scheduled at 3:45 p.m.

At a meeting in Penticton Monday night attended by 1,000 persons, Mr. Diefenbaker turned again to Columbia River hydro and also called for a firm line by the federal government in regard to import of U.S. farm products.

The U.S. should pay for downstream benefits on the Columbia in flood control and irrigation, with the money applied against the cost of the Mica Creek dam, he said. Payment for downstream power benefits should be in the form of power returned to Canada, not cash.

On agriculture, Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has shown no interest in the B.C. fruit and vegetable growers. It had done nothing about U.S. produce "dumped" into Canada at the end of the U.S. growing season just as the Canadian crop was coming onto the market.

More than $100,000,000 worth of U.S. farm produce had come into Canada last year—"one of the most wide open markets in the world." The U.S. market was closed to Canadian farmers whenever U.S. farmers were being harmed.

"It's about time that a Canadian government started looking after Canadians," he said at Kelowna.

At Vernon he dealt with agriculture and with the government's tight-money policy.

He said External Affairs Minister Pearson, in a recent speech had promised the government would be something for agriculture after the election.

COINCIDENCE
"What have they been doing for the last four years? It just seems sheer coincidence that after four years of inaction, in an election year action is taken."

A Conservative government would ensure farmers a fair share of the national income through price supports which would provide prices that bore a fair relationship to farmers' costs.

"That is being done in every country of the world that has any regard for agriculture."

He said the Liberal government's tight-money policy has not stopped inflation. Prices had risen. High interest rates had "struck a body blow" to small businesses, while leaving big business unaffected.

"The first way to meet inflation is for a government to be its own physician and reduce unnecessary expenditures."

He said the federal government overtaxed Canadians by $500,000,000 last year. A reduction in unnecessary taxes would stimulate production and help combat inflation.
